Margaret's Wedding Plans Called Gain for Democracy

BY ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

London—Princess Margaret wore her engagement ring today, a ruby surrounded by diamonds set in the shape of a flower.

She was happy as she admired it, at the royal lodge at nearby Windsor, with the dashing young man she will marry, society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, 29-year-old commoner.

Heads close together, they stood on the grounds of the lodge, watching the bright sunshine make the ruby gleam brilliant red. Red for long happiness, said members of the household. Princess Margaret was 29 last Aug. 21.

Armstrong-Jones was at the royal lodge, about 30 miles west of London, as the weekend guest of Queen Elizabeth, the queen mother, who happily announced the betrothal of her youngest daughter last night.

Society Amazed

Margaret shared her joy with the queen mother, who obviously was amused by the future which her surprise announcement caused throughout the world. The secret has been kept superbly, by mother and daughter, and by the young man involved.

Must be Talkative

Man May Enter Orbit Before End of 1961

By The Associated Press

When this country puts a man in orbit around the earth—possibly late next year—he'll have to be something of a chatterbox.

Officials are hoping the first man-in-space flight will be made from Cape Canaveral, Fla., late in 1961.

But whatever the date, the astronaut will spend about a third of his time in space talking to people back on the ground.

Data about the talkative spaceman came yesterday during a day in which an experimental Midas "spy" satellite failed, a Polaris was destroyed in flight when it went out of control, and bad weather forced postponement of the launching of an inflatable plastic sphere.

Approve Added Fund

The senate appropriations committee in Washington today made public testimony from space administration officials about the man-in-space program called project Mercury.

The committee also approved an additional $19 million for the Mercury program. The amount is an advance on $107,750,000 asked by NASA for the fiscal year starting July 1. Congress already has provided more than $121 million for the program the last two years.

Maj. Vic Hammond, director of tracking and communications for the project, told the committee during the hearings that while the capsule is in flight "we have provision to have communications with the astronaut for approximately 5 minutes out of every 15 that he flies."

George Low, director of NASA space flight development, provided other details. He said plans call for the first astronaut to make three 90-minute trips around the earth, and then a package of braking rockets will be fired to slow the capsule.

"It will re-enter the atmosphere and it will land in the Atlantic ocean near Puerto Rico," Low said. Parachutes will be used to slow the descent and ships will be deployed in the area to pick up the capsule, he said.

Meanwhile, technicians at Cape Canaveral were studying telemetry data to learn the reason for the failure of this country's first attempt to orbit an experimental Midas "spy" satellite.

Officials said another satellite might be launched within two months.

Cots Put in Capitol As Senate Girds for Civil Rights Fight

Round-the-Clock Sessions Will Start Early in Week

Washington—Forty army cots have been moved into the capitol building. They're for weary senators to snatch a little shut-eye during round-the-clock sessions starting next week on civil rights legislation.

Most of the cots will be set up in committee hearing rooms on the floor below the senate chamber. Others will be in the cloakrooms just outside the senate.

Why only 40 cots for 100 senators? Senate Sergeant-at-Arms C. Duke said many senators plan to bed down on couches in their offices near the senate chamber.

Can Force Quorum

They'll have to be ready to roll out on short notice because southern opponents of civil rights legislation can demand quorum calls in the wee hours to harass their opponents.

Then everything stops until a quorum—51 senators—appears for a roll call. The Dixie senators have it easier. Only a few of them must be on hand at a time.

Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas called the continuous sessions, starting Monday, in an attempt to get a vote on civil rights in the face of a southern filibuster.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) said he plans to do his sleeping in the senate gymnasium, where he can also get a relaxing massage.

A spokesman for Vice President Richard M. Nixon said he plans to keep himself continuously available, but does not plan to stay at the capitol through the nights.

Nixon would be needed only in case of a tie vote and could get to the senate from his home in time for that.

Like an army, the senate needs support from the rear echelons—the reading clerks, journal clerks, parliamentarians, page boys, doorkeepers, elevator operators and the man who keeps the furnace stoked up.

They're all making plans to go on marathon shifts for the duration.

Clerics Want Apology for Alleged Slur

Say Pennsylvania Congressman Made Untrue Statement

New York—Six leading Protestant churchmen have demanded that Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) apologize and retract what they termed his "untrue statement" charging communist infiltration of churches.

Walter responded by inviting the church leaders to appear before the house committee on un-American activities, of which he is chairman.

Want to Find Truth

The church leaders yesterday also called on Air Force Sec. Dudley C. Sharp to "repudiate and forbid reissuance in any form of the false and slanderous charges" contained in a withdrawn air force manual.

In response to Walter's invitation, two of the church leaders said they would be cooperative "with any agency of the government that is sincerely trying to get at the truth of the allegations."

The demand in telegrams to Walter and Sharp came from leaders of the United Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal, Congregational Christian and Reformed churches. Their memberships total nearly 18 million.

An air force manual prepared at Lackland Air Force base, Texas, said a number of church leaders had proclaimed communist affiliations.

Outbreaks Mar Stay In Buenos Aires Prior To Flight to Resort City

Mar del Plata, Argentina—Amid tightened security precautions, President Eisenhower visited this south Atlantic resort city today on his way across Argentina to a quiet weekend at Bariloche, in the Andes.

Ending a visit to Buenos Aires marred by bombings before he arrived and Peronist and socialist outbursts while he was cheered by a vast majority as a guest in the capital, Eisenhower made the 14 hour flight to Mar del Plata in his Columbine III.

This is a fashionable resort 230 miles southeast of Buenos Aires whose year around population of 350,000 swells to more than a million in the summer, the season now prevailing south of the equator. Argentines call it "The Pearl of the Atlantic."

Thousands of persons, many of them dressed in bathing suits and beach clothes, lined up on both sides of the ocean front drive leading to the provincial hotel.

Closed lines of blue-jacketed policemen stood in front of the crowds.

Precautions Checked

Above the hotel a dozen gas-filled balloons held high in the air the flags of Argentina and the United States.

The weather was very warm and humid.

U.S. secret service men and Argentine officials had scurried about checking security precautions as a result of the Buenos Aires incidents. The president's brief appearances there this morning, however, were without incident.

He was warmly cheered again by crowds along the route he followed before leaving for Mar del Plata.

Argentina's President Arturo Frondizi preceded Eisenhower to this city, flying in by commercial plane, and greeted him at the airport.

Wreath At Hero's Grave

Police kept the crowd on the rim of the plaza as Eisenhower, bareheaded, laid a wreath at the monument of Gen. Jose de San Martin, Argentina's national hero. Usually the public is permitted to watch such ceremonies at close range.

About 500 socialist demonstrators tore down U. S. flags last night in the heart of the capital.

The demonstrators were members of the Argentine socialist party, a small left wing splinter group which broke away from the nation's main socialist organization in a fight over internal affairs.

The outburst came after a political meeting in which the main speaker, Hector Inigo Carrera, held up a doll—bearing a pig's head wrapped in an American flag—and ranted against the Eisenhower visit.

"The symbolic keys (to Buenos Aires) which were given Eisenhower are those which the Yankees will use to rob us," he charged.

AMC to Add 500 At Kenosha Plant

Detroit—American Motors announced Friday it will add 500 employees at its plant in Kenosha, Wis., in the next three weeks because of the recent switch to around-the-clock assembly operations.

AMC reported 1960 model year production of 212,576 Ramblers, compared with 167,010 a year ago and said March production schedules call for 48,000 assemblies.

With the addition of the new force, the company's Wisconsin employment total will be 25,800, another new record.

Of the total, 14,655 will be at Kenosha and 11,145 at the Milwaukee body plant.

Weather to Remain Same Over Weekend

Wisconsin—Skies to remain partly cloudy to cloudy. A little colder tonight. Same outlook Sunday, Monday: Mostly cloudy with chance of snow in the extreme south, little change in temperature.

Appleton—Temperatures for the 24-hour period ending at 9 a.m. today: High 27, low 8. Temperature at 10 a.m. today 16. Barometer reading 30.15 inches with wind northwest at five miles an hour.

Sun sets at 5:37 p.m., rises Sunday at 6:35 a.m.; moon sets at 6:57 p.m.

Morton Raps Critics of Ike

Cites Efforts to Convince People of Military Weakness

Raleigh, N.C.—Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton today pictured Democratic leaders as "politically-motivated critics." He said they have "sought to convince the American people that the nation's defenses have gone to pot under President Eisenhower."

Morton said these critics "with their paper hats and wooden swords stand as a forlorn and pathetic army of play warriors alongside a proven soldier-statesman of President Eisenhower's tremendous stature."

"People Not Buying"

"The people are not buying their wares," declared Morton in the keynote to 1,000 North Carolina Republicans at their biennial state convention.

Morton, a U. S. senator from Kentucky as well as GOP chairman, asserted, "There has been a calculated effort by some Democratic spokesmen to downgrade the military might of this nation and to depict the United States as a second-rate power."

Carry Body As They Seek Funeral Home

Oklahoma City—Two little girls were sighted on a street yesterday carrying the body of their infant sister and one told officers they were searching for a funeral home.

The girls, 13 and 8, said they had been alone at home with two other brothers and sisters since their mother left several days ago to buy groceries.

Detective E. B. Meals said the infant apparently died Wednesday from exposure and malnutrition. He said the 13-year-old told him she gave the baby a bath, dressed her in fresh clothing and started the hunt for a funeral home.

Parents Missing

Meals said whereabouts of the parents was not yet known.

G. L. Emmett, youth bureau officer, said the children's father had not reported to work since Feb. 15. He was employed at nearby Yukon by a motor company.

Meals quoted the older girl as saying, "I'd been saving the baby something to eat and she hadn't waked up."

The girl told Meals she had been ordered by her parents not to accept aid from anyone. She said she had told no one of the trouble.

She said she had fed the other children on pie crust for two days.

A woman picked up by police in the area on Feb. 15 was sent to a hospital for observation, Meals said, adding that she would not talk to anyone or identify herself.

Plane Crash Injured Show Improvement

Shannon Airport, Ireland—Doctors caring for 23 survivors of the Alitalia airliner crash reported an overnight improvement in the condition of several of the injured today.

The survivors were in three hospitals near where the 4-engine DC7-C plowed into the ground after takeoff for New York yesterday, killing 29 persons.

An airline spokesman said one of the bodies had been identified as Mrs. Giulia Roosevelt Pallavicini Creel, a distant cousin of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and wife of a marine pilot, Lt. James Creel, Jr. His father is Judge James R. Creel of the New York City court of special sessions. Mrs. Creel's home address was given as 520 Park avenue, New York City.

BY CHARLES HOUSE

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It did come to pass that Acred came again to his homeland though how he was come there he knew not, and all was as before, except that he knew that a destiny had been laid upon him.

To his father, the great one, Acred did go forth for he would have the wisdom of his sire, wisest of all men in the kingdom.

When he came upon Nabocan, his father, he spoke strange words of a journey to a land far away.

"Sire," quoth Acred, "it has come upon me to visit a land of stranglings, to observe it and to return again to our land. Aye, and this did I, though I am now sore perplexed. It is of this journey I would speak."

"I now do fear," saith Nabocan, "that mine great and grand son who was first born unto me hath tumbled into a dream. Thou hast not journeyed far, Acred, for but an hour ago I did see you frolicking in yon woodlands with the falcon. Dreamest thou of a strange journey?"

Land of Oddments

"Nay, Sire. I come now fresh from the land of oddments. With mine own eyes did I observe the wonders of the distant land."

"My son," quoth Nabocan, "I do not gainsay thee, but hold, speak unto me of the adventures which came to you in your dream, of this strange land from this distant land. Whence came you? Where lies this land of the distant journey?"

"This I know not, Sire," said Acred with a sad heart. "I do but know that something came upon me and that I moved, as through the air, to this far distant land. There did I see a people passing strange who did ride in horseless carriages and who did breathe out smoke from tubes which they carried."

"Saw'st thou this?"

Humphrey Making Fight Of Life in State Primary

Observers Believe Senator Must Come From Rear to Beat Kennedy

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, a neighborly Minnesota Democrat who has spoken from more Wisconsin platforms than some prominent local politicians, is making the fight of his life in the Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary campaign.

In the estimates of most observers, Humphrey must come from behind to defeat the challenge of Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, leader in most of the national polls. Kennedy is a man of considerable appeal to the electorate.

But Humphrey is conceding nothing, and has said that he will match Kennedy day for day in campaign time budgeting, and blow for blow in platform orations. Humphrey in fact has repeatedly challenged Kennedy and other rivals to public debates, without getting acceptance.

No Blinking
As Kennedy, Humphrey regards the Wisconsin election without blinkers. Because the Wisconsin preferential ballot is early, and because it is in his "back yard," as the politicians put it, the Minnesota senator must make a fair to good showing here to remain in the running at the Los Angeles nominating convention of his party.

Humphrey is putting his principal reliance, according to the evidence thus far, upon these factors and situations:

1. His identity as a New Deal variety of liberal, and this state's tradition of liberalism.
2. The loyalty of hundreds of local politicians and organization Democrats who remember the Minnesota aid over the years in the reconstruction of the Democratic party organization here.

Oratory Strength
3. His insistent theme that his is the most reliable concern for the economic problems of the farmer, as shown by his long-time agitation for more generous farm subsidy programs in the United States congress.

4. The potent backing of principal elements of Wisconsin organized labor.
5. The candidate's own acknowledged superiority as an indefatigable campaign orator.

Few Rural Votes
Some of those buttresses to his campaign, however, must be qualified to some degree. As a result the general appraisal is that Sen. Humphrey will overtake Sen. Kennedy with considerable difficulty during the next six weeks.

His "liberalism," for example, is not sufficiently distinctive, in comparison with Kennedy, to persuade some of the top men of the Wisconsin Democratic party to express a preference. Sen. William Proxmire and Gov. Gaylord Nelson are carefully "sitting out" the campaign, as are several of the Wisconsin Democratic members of the house of representatives.

Humphrey's farm program bid would be more effective in another year. This is the year in which Wisconsin towns won't hold elections for local officers, a circumstance that will almost surely hold down the vote in the farming communities. There is no other state-wide contest to attract voters in the rural voting places.

No Labor Move
While Humphrey's campaign machinery is studded with the names of top labor organization officers, the Wisconsin AFL-CIO did not approve a move for a formal endorsement of Humphrey. According to reliable accounts, the split among the chief leaders of the big labor federation was nearly even, as between Humphrey and Kennedy.

Humphrey can campaign the typical Wisconsin county, however, with the comforting knowledge that most of the local Democratic politicians know him, like him and will do nothing to harm him. At most of his meetings the hall will be adorned by a placard calling him Wisconsin's "third senator," a reference to his multiple speaking appearances in the state in other years. He has a first name acquaintance with hundreds of Wisconsin leaders, and exploits it to the utmost.

Problem Area
Humphrey in the analysis of most observers is the favorite in the Ninth District, where survive strong traditions of the LaFollette liberalism of other days and which adjoins his strong St. Paul, Minneapolis party organization. He is also banking upon the delegates of the near-by Third and 10th districts, and his lieutenants believe he has an even chance at the moment in the second—including Madison—and the seventh in north central Wisconsin. His problem, in that accounting, will be to break into the more populous Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Fox River Valley sectors where Sen. Kennedy's organization has based its hopes most obviously, and which can also influence more powerfully the state-wide popularity totals.

The Minnesota candidate has consciously moderated his speaking style. Speeches have been shortened considerably, and his style shows a more leisurely place. At 48 Sen. Humphrey maintains a physical effort, however, that is the admiration of many local politicians and a burden to newspaper correspondents and others who have been required to follow him on his arduous schedules.

To Your Good Health

Psoriasis, Pityriasis Rosa Both Minor Skin Diseases

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Two questions today deal with skin diseases, which are so prevalent and often so baffling and hence aggravating. "I have had psoriasis for three years and the doctors have told me there is no cure for it," — E.C."

Psoriasis evidently is not caused by infection nor, so far as we can discover, by any disturbance in the internal functioning of the body. In short, we don't know the cause and it can affect people who seem to be altogether healthy.

There is no one cure for it. We do know, however, that at times various treatments work in some cases. Again, psoriasis may vanish as mysteriously as it came. Sometimes cortisone (as well as other things) will knock a case out quickly. Again, failure!

Leukemia Drugs Used
Currently some of the drugs used to treat leukemia have displayed impressive results in curbing psoriasis. These drugs are potent and may be dispensed only under direct and close supervision of a physician.

So there you have a hard question for both patient and doctor. Should a very dangerous drug be used to improve a disease which is rarely serious, like psoriasis?

My thought would be, rather, to have patience, and try the simpler and safer remedies one at a time, giving each a fair chance before discarding it and trying the next.

"Would you explain pityriasis rosea — its cause and treatment?" — Mrs. A.J.R." It's common. Consists of

"Dear Dr. Molner: My aunt's doctor has told her she has vitiligo. She looks terrible with all those white spots on her hands, arms and face. Is she going to continue getting more of these spots? — T.M."

It is impossible to predict. Sometimes these light spots disappear spontaneously, sometimes more appear. The cause is not known, but for some reason the skin loses melanin, the pigment gives it much color. The condition fortunately is not dangerous. Properly applied, walnut juice stain can hide much of the light area. The "sun-tanning" pills, which looked hopeful at first, have proved disappointing as a treatment for vitiligo.

Kimberly Bees Edge Indians

4th Frame Rally Fails as Papermakers Take 55-54 Decision

Kimberly — Fighting from behind in the final period the Shawano Indian Jayvees ran out of steam in the final minute and bowed 55-54 to the Kimberly Jayvees in a preliminary game here Friday night.

Shawano stormed to an 11-5 lead at the end of the first period but the Papermakers came back strong in the second quarter and outscored the losers 22-8. Both teams added 14 points in the third quarter to give the winners a 10-point bulge going into the last period.

The Indians started the uphill battle and with slightly over two minutes remaining moved into the lead. An attempt to freeze the ball went astray and when Kimberly took possession, the Indians fouled them in an attempt to regain control.

The Papermakers regained the lead from the free throw stripe with about 20 seconds remaining and shortly after intercepted an Indian pass to clinch the contest despite being outscored 23-14 in the period.

Hietpas led the winners with 19 points while Lee Otto matched the effort for the losers.

A Christian Question!

NEW YEARS ST. VALENTINE'S LENT WHY LENT?

MEMORIAL DAY JULY 4TH LABOR DAY TRINITY

For hundreds of years the Christian Church has set aside the six weeks before Easter and has designated them "the Lenten season."

The purpose of this special season is to give Christians an opportunity to recall the consequences of sin and the assurance of redemption. It provides Christian churches with an opportunity to tell the unchurched residents of their communities of the central fact of the Christian faith—the death of the Son of God to atone for the sins of the world.

The message of Lent is to Christianity what a spring is to a watch, what a motor is to a car. Take the message of Christ's life and death out of the Christian religion and you have only a worthless shell.

The message of Lent is still the message of Paul: "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures."

During these weeks thousands of churches throughout the nation are bringing this fundamental Bible fact into sharp focus. If you have not yet found forgiveness for your sins through faith in Christ, we extend a hearty invitation to you to attend our Lenten services.

The POWER of FAITH

Faith is an event in the Winter Olympics. Bibles printed in 28 languages, representing the language of those participating in the games, have been made available in the new Protestant United Church of Squaw Valley by the American Bible Society. There are hymn books printed in three languages. The Catholics have built a Queen of the Snows Church there. Priests and ministers are skiers, able to speak the skiers' jargon in various languages. They are on the slopes during all ski hours and, as unofficial chaplains, have access to the athletes' quarters. To signify that faith is part of the American way of life, the Protestants have brought an American Indian minister, Mitchell White Rabbit, from Wisconsin, who conducts services. On opening day, St. Ullr, patron saint of skiers, was honored in a church ceremony, the "Blessing of the Skis," in which prayers were offered that the skis carry their users safely.

Sacco, Vanzetti Case Subject of New Met Opera

New York — The Ford foundation has commissioned a partly completed opera based on the Sacco and Vanzetti case, and the Metropolitan Opera company has taken an option on the work.

The opera recommended the composer, Marc Blitzstein, for the commission under the terms of the Ford foundation's new project to help contemporary American opera.

Officials of the Met are expected to be able to hear most of the opera next fall. Shortly thereafter, a decision on whether to produce it will be made.

Blitzstein has written a number of musical works for the theater. They include "Regina," based on Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," and "The Cradle Will Rock."

He announced recently that he was working on an operatic version of the case of the Italian-born radicals, Nicola Sacco, a factory shoe worker, and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, a fish peddler.

Sacco and Vanzetti were executed in 1927 for a payroll holdup - murder in South Braintree, Mass. Many of their supporters around the world contended that the convictions were actually because of their radical political activities.

According to Blitzstein's usual practice, he will write both the words and the music for his opera. He has described his new work as a full opera, with little or no spoken dialogue. It will be unlike his earlier works, which are in the nature of musical plays.

Agricultural Chemicals and Cancer

The nation's experience with cranberries being excluded from the market at Thanksgiving time because of the improper use of a chemical weed killer has aroused considerable interest in the use of agricultural chemicals of all kinds.

Recently Rep. Henry Aldous Dixon (R-Utah) made a speech in the House of Representatives which gave some pertinent information on this subject.

Rep. Dixon had served as president of Weber college in Utah and was president of Utah State Agricultural college when he was drafted to run for the House. He has served five years on the House Agricultural committee and thus is well acquainted with problems relating to chemicals and the food supply. During his speech in the House he asked, "Which of the agricultural chemicals are safe for human consumption, and what tolerances should be permissible?"

Rep. Dixon made it clear that he would be the last person to advocate any policy which would not protect the public health. Nevertheless, he said, there appears to be a risk of serious jeopardy to the nation's food supply and possibly also to public health in a strict interpretation and enforcement of the Delaney amendment to the food additives law. Rep. Dixon explained that although the Delaney amendment had been opposed by the Food and Drug Administration and had been rejected in the committee as being too sweeping, it was adopted with little opposition during the closing rush of the last session of Congress. This, he said, was possible because there was little opportunity for debate, and the members of both the House and the Senate were put in a position of voting for the bill or appearing to vote for cancer.

However, the effects of the bill are not what the congressmen and the senators hoped to accomplish. It is interpreted by the Food and Drug Administration as prohibiting the most minute trace of any carcinogen in human food even though it requires heavy doses over a long period to produce cancer in an animal.

GOP Poll Will Get GOP Answers

John Wyngaard, long-time Post-Crescent Madison correspondent and political writer, in a recent column cast a suspicious eye toward polls and gave advance warning to political opinion samplers that he wants to know who is taking the soundings, how and why so he can judge their validity before weighing their findings.

That suspicion appears well-founded if the "Wisconsin Poll" now being conducted by Facts, the Wisconsin Republican party weekly news sheet, is typical. The explanation says Facts readers represent a wide cross-section of the state's population and that their opinion is an important influence in their home communities and an indication of what Wisconsin people are concerned about in management of their government.

That sounds innocent enough, but it's not quite true. Facts is a Republican paper and, while available to any who want to pay the $1 annual subscription price, probably is distributed almost entirely among Republicans — and mainly party-member Republicans at that. That is hardly a cross-section of the Wisconsin population.

We don't know how the state GOP plans to use the results of the poll, but certainly no one is so naive as to think Vice President Nixon's chances of succeeding like will be any better when he is picked as the top

Indonesian Discord

Some parents may be inclined to agree with Premier Sukarno of Indonesia that the cha-cha and other "beat" dances are "foreign, crazy, mixed-up noises." But he is having no more success in getting rid of them than are Americans who want to go back to the waltz — or maybe the Charleston.

Sukarno concedes that some Western music, like that composed by Bach or Beethoven, is culturally permissible. But he apparently thinks the importation of jive is part of a "cultural imperialism" aimed at lowering his people's resistance to colonialism, or something. While Communism continues to make inroads in Indonesia, without bother from the government, Sukarno has clapped down bans on dancing.

What Others are Saying
1923 German Letters
Illustrate Inflation

From The Wall Street Journal

We are indebted to Edgar Schlesinger of Monticello, N. Y., for a grim reminder of how inflation works when it gets up a good head of steam.

Schlesinger sent us two envelopes mailed a few months apart from Germany after World War I. Now we certainly don't want any of our readers to get the idea that we think the United States is headed for any such disaster as overtook Germany in the early 1920's. Our inflation has been a year by year

The speaker declared that many common foods have been named as carcinogens although people eat them in quantities. He pointed out that cancers can be produced in test animals by repeated injections of sugar solutions in the muscle tissue or by peanut oil or cottonseed oil or lard or tannic acid. Thus the question arises, is the government not acting in a ridiculous manner in prohibiting infinitesimal traces of additives without any evidence they actually are dangerous?

Rep. Dixon told Congress that while the increase in agricultural production has been 50 per cent since World War II, 40 per cent of that increase was due to the use of agricultural chemicals.

The government changes its policy so often that neither the manufacturing companies nor the farmers know what they may use. Changes in the scientific methods of measuring for chemical traces have resulted in tremendous losses due to the production and sale of chemicals which were once approved but later were suddenly disapproved. Under such policies a single case of an agricultural product occasionally may be found to be contaminated and because of that the entire crop may be unsalable. Rep. Dixon mentioned one carton of Florida celery being rejected and although no further contamination was found the Florida celery price dropped more than 50 per cent.

The speaker has shown convincingly that the Delaney amendment is bad legislation. It never would have been adopted under the ordinary legislative program. The committee which studied the question was well aware of its probable bad effects but the congressmen who had given it no attention whatsoever voted it into the law merely to save themselves from appearing to favor cancer, whatever that may mean.

It will not be easy either to repeal this amendment or to revise it because those staunch advocates of "natural food" will try to shout down their opponents with charges that they are attempting to aid in the spread of cancer.

choice among five candidates listed in the poll. The others are Democrats Adlai Stevenson and Sens. Humphrey, Kennedy and Morse.

We'll go on record right now predicting those who answer will react this way on the other four questions posed by the poll:

1. Favor "reducing federal taxes" instead of "increased spending for more federal aids."
2. Favor "government economy and a balanced budget" instead of "inflationary deficit-spending and reduced purchasing power of the dollar."
3. Favor "the present 'firm' foreign policy for containing communism" instead of the "former 'Potsdam policy' of appeasement that led to the expansion of world communism and the Korean war."
4. Favor "continued curbing of abuse of power by labor 'bosses' like Hoffa" instead of "repeal of the Landrum-Griffin bill."

We'll go even further, and without benefit of a poll to find out what the grass roots sentiment is, predict that:

1. Nine out of ten voters will feel these questions are loaded.
2. The poll will have absolutely no influence on the outcome of the Wisconsin elections this year.
3. Nixon will be the choice of more Republicans answering this poll than any of the Democratic candidates.

Record-burning parties have been publicly held. Instructors in the subversive steps are liable to prison terms or heavy fines. Dancers are urged to compete for prizes in national folk dances.

But behind closed doors, the cha-cha goes on. A jivy sentinel stands watch outside. And a White Paper on culture, supposed to recommend what is all right for Indonesians to know about music, has been held up because the authors can't agree on the score.

A couple of years ago the people of France were alarmed because an American soft drink was competing with their wines. This concern was silly enough but at least the French didn't ban Coca Cola.

ply turning the crank of the printing press, as Germany did. Sometimes the first method leads inexorably to the second. And when inflation really takes over, its speed is frightening, as the two envelopes Schlesinger sent us prove.

We're not at all confident that the lesson in two letters will convince the Washington spenders that they're wrong. But if the public gets the message and passes it along to their elected representatives in strong enough language inflationary spending could be slowed.

The lesson in the two letters is pretty grim:

One of the letters was mailed May 23, 1923, and the stamps on it cost 550 marks.

The other letter was mailed six months and one week later and the stamps on it cost 220,000,000,000 marks.

Criticizes Menasha Sale of Playground Property to Bank

Editor, Post-Crescent:

It is apparent that not one of our six council men that voted in the affirmative in regard to the Racine street playground property, have had an ounce of business experience.

The cold facts on paper do not show any real gain which our town is in need.

For an example, the property that is now occupied by the Medical Associates building, sold for $28,000.

The property occupied by the Racine street Conoco filling station sold in the $26,000 bracket. Only a little foresight would show that the two lots facing Racine street could be equal in price of these two properties. Of the eleven lots this would leave nine additional lots which could sell at the minimum of $4,000 each, totaling $36,000 more.

The minimum charge for the Racine playground property should be $90,000 compared with $57,000 for which it sold.

Our six affirmative council men sold the entire property for only $3,000 more for which the two front lots could be sold. In return we received a white elephant, the First National bank building, which would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 to remodel. Realizing a $7,500 profit it would be impossible for any red blooded citizen not to protest this transaction. Our city offices could be adequate with the changes of a few partitions.

The Menasha public might note that within a short time a million dollar bond issue will have to be raised for projects such as East Ninth street storm sewer, an addition to our disposal plant and utilities to be furnished for the Clovis plot. We can ill afford to stand such a loss.

Our fire and police departments are obsolete. Are we going to be able to afford new property to build these most important protections so centrally located?

Dunn House on Plank Road Burns

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Feb. 25, 1860.

On Saturday evening last the house belonging to B. F. Clarke — better known as the Dunn House — a very large farm-house situated two miles west of this city on the Hortonville Plank road, was totally destroyed by fire.

The house was occupied by Mr. George Lanphear, whose loss was quite heavy as there was no insurance on the furniture of which he lost very largely.

At the time of the fire there was nobody at home but two of Mr. Lanphear's daughters, one of them being helpless. But the one acted the part of the heroine, we should judge from the package of valuable papers she rescued from the flames.

Under the Capitol Dome
State Encroaching on John's Modest Office

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — Perhaps nothing so aptly illustrates the irrepressible growth of the public services in our time as the housing problem for state agencies in this capital city.

The other day the state building commission, without a discernible lifting of any eyebrow, authorized the state engineers to proceed with the planning for the construction of a new state office building on the west side of the city that will cost before completion about $15,000,000, not to mention the additional millions required for equipment and furnishings and maintenance.

There might have been a few persons in the room who recalled that this is the second giant auxiliary office building completed in recent times, and that the original state capital was built a little more than half a century ago for the price of $7,500,000.

The price comparison, of course, is not relevant. Inflation of building costs is an obvious factor. But inflation of prices has had no relation to the fact that the state today has thousands of employees that it didn't have, or apparently need, only a few years ago, and that they are overflowing the city like lava from a volcano.

BUT MORE

Moreover, there is a certain fatalism apparent in the talk of the planners. The new Madison office building, for example, is being designed on the assumption that the number of employees will increase at the rate of two to four per cent annually for the indefinite future, and that space requirements will expand at least as much. Out in the state there are being planned a series of district office buildings, to accommodate the overflow of civil servants who don't come to Madison except for occasional reports to their superiors. The Milwaukee downtown state office building will cost at least $6,000,000, according to current discussions.

It is the fashion to argue that the cost of government must rise because there are more school children, more college students, more elderly and indigent people, and others requiring more services. Yet these space requirements have no direct relation to those matters. The schools, for example, are expanding at an enormous pace without relation to these requirements for administrative room, space for Neighbors in Madison have been aware for a long time that the state is their principal competitor in the labor market and in rental space. But the problem is now coming closer to home. These dispatches for 20 years have been sent from modest but ample quarters in a down-town Madison office building, originally occupied wholly by other tenants similarly engaged in private enterprises. About two years ago a state agency moved into a vacant single room down the hall. In the intervening months it has gradually swelled, into one suite after another, until now it occupies more than half of the best space on this bureau's floor and is threatening eviction of the neighbors. The most recent expansion puts it immediately adjacent to this inoffensive competitor, who is starting to wonder about his fate.

The editor will please take note that if there is an abrupt interruption of these missives one day, it will be a footnote to the irresistible tendency of government to expand.

Paper Hits Eaton for Views on U. S.

From The Sarasota (Fla.) Times-Union

Cyrus K. Eaton is Canadian-born and often gathers together a small group of deep thinkers at his estate in Pughwash, Nova Scotia, to debate the ills of the world. They come from many places, including the Soviet Union. Usually the United States comes off second best.

A correspondent for the Hamilton Spectator interviewed Eaton on his birthday in Quebec and reported that "he celebrated (the birthday) with a swipe at the society in which he has marched well on his way to his first billion." He said that the elderly tycoon called upon Uncle Sam to be "more humble, to speak softly" and deplored what he believed to be the unpopularity of Americans abroad. "There is something ungracious about the way Cyrus Eaton carries on," commented the Spectator.

"This shows the superficial quality of Eaton's judgment of the citizens of the country of his adoption," it added. "It is this country, which Eaton accuses of being arrogant, that we hear so clearly the voices of mutual criticism and analysis. It would be better if he left these tasks to native-born and-bred Americans. Better still he might offer his services as a national conscience to Russia or China. There is a singular lack of . . . words of self-reproach from those regions and they could do with an extra conscience or so — even self-appointed ones."

Having noted for years Eaton's comments on the nation which has so richly rewarded him with material goods, we add a heartfelt amen.

Full Stage Schedule Brightens March

Three Types of Theater Offered As Fare for Interested Playgoers

BY JINGO

The stage in the Fox Cities will present a full and exciting schedule in March to complement the drama of the great festivals with which it will share the month. Three types of theater will be on display: collegiate, community and professional; a real treat!

The parade begins Wednesday when the Lawrence College actors start a 4-day stand in "The Good Woman of Stepan," a work of one of the great continental playwrights of the century, Bertolt Brecht.

As the last offering of the collegians was an example of the best in contemporary theater, Arthur Miller's "A View from the Bridge," Brecht's work is considered the best in the entire modern repertoire.

An added Brecht March attraction will be a more readily recognized Brecht drama, "The Threepenny Opera," in the Lawrence film classics series on March 13.

The German film features Brecht's drama, Kurt Weill's notable music and stars Mrs. Weill, Lotte Lenya, who is in her sixth year in the English revival in New York which has made the rapsaloon Mack the Knife a household word.

St. Patrick's day will bring a real headline attraction to make something like history in the Fox Cities when the Neenah Rotary's scholarship fund series brings the Boston Opera company to Appleton High school in Jules Vernes' "A Trip to the Moon" set to music by Jacques Offenbach.

If Jingo were a betting man, he would empty the sock on this parlay: a most topical subject handled by the greatest seer in literature, orchestrated by the greatest of Parisian composers and presented in a form rarely seen in the community. That shouldn't be a good bet! It's a sure thing!

The month will end for the stage in a most ambitious undertaking by the Attie Theatre with its production of Peter Ustinov's "Romanoff and Juliet," the most versatile theater man's spoof of the cold war based on Shakespeare's tragedy of the star-crossed lovers.

The solution of the technical problem of the show's pair of 2-story stages alone will be well worth the trip to Stansbury theater on the last weekend of March and the first weekend of April.

In Hollywood, Ustinov—while making a Swiss investment of some $200,000 from the stage "Romanoff" production—is producing, directing, adapting and starring in the film version. To make real sure nothing escapes him, he has signed his wife, Suzanne Cloutier, for one of the starring roles. If this most amazing young man comes only part way up to expectation "Romanoff" should be one of the best films of the year. He's spectacular!

A Parting Shot—For any undisciplined viewer of the great "Tonight" departure, Terry Turner of the Chicago "Daily News" makes this observation: "Paar waited more than 15 minutes before making his move on camera, until all stations were broadcasting his show." That's really controlling a spontaneous, emotional outbreak.

Pay TV Makes Its Debut In Toronto

Toronto, Canada — Telemeter's new "theater in the home" pay TV system became a reality here Friday night to an estimated thousand families in West Toronto. They dropped coins into meters attached to their television sets and watched a film, "Journey to the Center of the Earth," which also is playing currently in Toronto theaters.

An alternate choice shown simultaneously on another Telemeter channel was the "Nun's Story," which this week was nominated for an Academy award.

The price of $1 for an entire family viewing either picture was the same as the price of a single admission ticket to local theaters.

The pay-TV debut marked the beginning of regularly scheduled programs which include current motion pictures, sports events and an increasingly wide variety of entertainment and educational subjects not available on free television.

These programs emanate from a special Telemeter studio in the heart of the Etobicoke section of the city and are carried by cable to subscribers' homes. Three simultaneous Telemeter program channels are provided, adding to the five commercial channels now available to Toronto viewers.

The Telemeter system in Toronto is the first to go into permanent operation anywhere in the world. It is being operated by Trans Canada Telemeter, a division of Famous Players Canadian corporation, Ltd., largest theater operator in Canada, under franchise from the International Telemeter company, a division of Paramount Pictures corporation.

And the little man, and many others, too, did speak from within."

Old Nabocan did permit a smile to flicker over his kind face.

"My son," saith he, "thou'st had but a dream!"

"Nay, Sire," said his first born, "no dream was this! Spake I with the people. And listened I and watched I this box," said Acred, and his face was flushed with growing anger.

"This box in the land of oddlings, then," saith Nabocan, "did it speak well and wisely?"

"Zounds!" saith old Nabocan, "weepeth this little man where others may look upon him, albeit without shame?"

"Aye, Sire."

"Spaketh he more?"

"Aye, he did readily admit that he is a wondrous one. He did not know the correct name of an heir presumptive to the throne of his country, a one which his land does seek. Wisdom he had not, but there was of him a certain charm which made it not unpleasant to look upon him."

"This man from the box—a jester, he was, like Ordu who amuseth our king?" asked Nabocan.

Vulgar Tale Withheld

"Very like," saith Acred, "yet, withal, he did once offend with a tale so vulgar that it would earn for Ordu the loss of his head."

"And the little man in the box. His head remained upon his shoulders?" asked Nabocan, unbelieving.

"Aye. But his prince used a magic to cease his voice and the vulgar tale did not come out of the box."

"And came something of this?"

"Aye. Looked he out of the box with sad and angry eyes, and spake he of his greatness, and saith he that he would no longer speak from the box and saith he that his play acting was come to an end that the play was not to be finished."

"But," asked Nabocan, "there is an ancient precept, a law of the performer, an ethic of olden times which saith, 'the play must go on.' What of the precept? What of this ancient ethic among the players?"

Great Furore

"I know not sire. But, in the world of oddlings from which I come, great excitement stirred the people. The little man of no wisdom became a word on the lips of the land. Great furore did shake the country. The country turned to madness."

"This seems passing well. The populace did clamor for the head of the jester?"

"Nay, father, nay. The populace did speak of him as a 'poor fellow' and was sad that he did not tell the story of vulgarity which he was wont to tell. I did meet one, though, with whom I spake, and dismissed he the jester's flight with a quaint question which is often used in the country."

"The question of the wise man, then was. . ."

"So what? This, said the wise one," answered Acred.

Oddlings' Oddity

"I do not this understand. But it is unseemly that this country of oddlings would spend excitement and furore upon such a one. They seek a new great king and they vent their excitement rather upon a jester. Odd this is, Acred, and passing strange. The little man of the box—he is then a great play actor with skill and ability that he is to be so much a cause of furore?"

Acred smiled.

"Nay, sire. The little man of the box has no skill of

'Hypnotic Eye' Based on New Film Gimmick

BY BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

Hollywood — How to be a movie producer in one easy lesson:

Get an idea.

This is the word from Charles Bloch, who was Hollywood manager of a photo syndicate until a few months ago. He's still at his old job, but he has also produced a movie for Allied Artists called "The Hypnotic Eye."

Possible Today

According to the reviews, the film is no great contribution to the cinema art, but it falls neatly into that important industry category: the exploitation picture. Like "Her-cules," "House on Haunted Hill," "The Tinger," it might make a bundle via heavy selling.

The interesting thing about the film is that it was dreamed up and produced by a complete tyro to the movie business. It's the sort of thing that can happen today.

"Five or 10 years ago, a newcomer could never have broken into the picture industry," said Bloch, a tall, dark-haired man in his thirties. "To be a producer, you either had to work your way up through the ranks or else be a relative of the studio head. The big studios would have no truck with independent operators."

Bloch's idea came right out of left field. A year ago, one of his photographers, Billy Whitfield, gagged that he had a notion for the ultimate in gimmicks: the audience would face a blank screen and be hypnotized into believing that they were witnessing the best movie they'd ever seen.

Hypnosis Idea

"I just laughed at him at first," said Bloch, "but after a while, I started thinking that there would be a good gimmick there. Why not hypnotize the audience?"

Actual hypnosis seemed too dangerous, but he and Whitfield whipped up a script dealing with hypnotic suggestion.

In the film, Jacques Bergerac plays a professional hypnotist who is doing his work on a theater audience. He asks that the house lights be turned on, then they light up the actual movie theater. He then puts the audience including one involving a balloon, which each patron gets at the door.

"We never really knew whether audiences would buy our gimmick," said Bloch. "The results were amazing at the two previews we had. We took infra-red photographs, and five out of every six in the audience appear to be following instructions."

Only in America Mental Disease Has Terminal Point

BY HARRY GOLDEN

We have dieticians to tell us what to eat; moralists to tell us how to act; consultants, how to buy; conformists, how to conform; and beatniks tell us how not to conform.

But who is there who can tell us how to live this day in peace? Who can tell us how to live so that tomorrow is not an omen of doom? We have lost our concern for the day in our search for the millenium. We have become too absorbed by the century and not absorbed enough by the individual. We work desperately trying to solve the problem of how we may shuttle to the moon so that we may transport our earthly foolishness to that unassuming green cheese.

It would be better for the practical man to live out his days one at a time, solving each problem as it arises, translating his experience into the simplest terms rather than submit himself to this constant excitement of what it will all be like in 1965, or 1970, or how the second quarter will be booming. There is no better way to earn the accolade, "Your citizenship has been useful."

Greatest Problem

One of the largest problems the practical man faces today is that of mental health. Judging by the increase in nervous breakdowns, general anxiety, and nerves, things are getting much worse.

The problem of dealing with mental health is aggravated by the fact that society has forgotten that there are people mentally ill and people who have been mentally ill. Schizophrenia, psychosis, mental exhaustion, or mental breakdown — all have a terminal point, just as measles have a terminal point. The disease progresses to a certain stage, and then a man begins to get well. Mental illness is a disease and like any other disease it is not necessarily recurrent or continuing.

If a practical man wanted to improve each day, he would convince society that people who break down are not worn out and ready to be scrapped but human beings who do not have to be coaxed to get well.

Many years ago, tuberculosis, or what went by the name of "consumption," was a forbidden topic in any well-bred parlor. As recently as 1924, when my mother's illness was diagnosed as cancer of the spine, cancer was also a forbidding subject. We told no one. We did not discuss this disease with either our closest friends or relatives. The atmosphere about cancer was one of shame. Mankind was immeasurably aided the day the enlightened banished the shame that accompanied this disease.

We must banish the confusion and mystery that surrounds mental health. Society is ashamed of the mentally disturbed because it understands neither the causes nor the cures of mental illness.

Society punishes the mentally ill with indifference and with shame. While neither of these make recovery problematic, they do make recovery harder. This forces the overworked doctors, nurses, psychiatrists, and the administrators to become perforce teachers. The least society can do is to let these wonderful people effect their cures without having to comfort those who are not sick and only ashamed because a loved one is.

"Convertible" Living Space for Your Home is offered by Tom Temple of Tom Temple Window and Door sales when he adds the DeVac glass wall porch enclosure. In the pictures above he shows before and after an unused porch was made into a popular year-around porch for indoor-outdoor living. Phone number of the firm is RE 4-9700.

"You really have to see one to believe it", according to Tom Temple Window and Door Sales, 304 W. Parkway Blvd. The livability and the easy carefree upkeep in the new glass wall porches are a delight to any wife or mother.

A visit to some of the 100 Fox Cities' homes which now have this new addition can be arranged by Tom. It is then that one sees the children playing, out of the mud and rain, the baby napping in perfectly controlled ventilation, the entire family lunching, relaxing or entertaining in an atmosphere of informal, happy comfort.

Ask the lady of the house. She will tell you that the closed porch is easier to care for than an open one. The three glass panels adjust quickly and easily to any position and may be removed completely from the inside for washing. She will tell you that her DeVac glass wall porch takes hours of wear and tear out of her living room and it is a family room in every sense of the word.

Ask the man of the house. He will tell you that the enclosure was economical and the best investment he has made in his home. In addition to winter the full-length fibre-glass screen panels can be removed and glass storm doors substituted, affording winter protection, making the porch an all year around room. Call Tom Temple at RE 4-9700 today.

Breast O' Chicken to Promote Charity-Checks

In one of the most spectacular promotions of the year, Breast O' Chicken Tuna, Inc., in turn, signs the check and mails it directly to the church or charity, which, upon endorsing it, becomes one dollar richer. The offer expires on April 30.

The unique plan is built around Charity-Checks, in the amount of one dollar each. A total of 1,250,000 of these checks will be distributed to grocers and shoppers can secure them only in grocery stores selling Breast O' Chicken Tuna. On the face of the check, the customer fills in the name and address of the charitable organization to which the check will go, along with her own name, and sends it with six labels from Breast O' Chicken Tuna.

First Carloads of Fox Propelled Harvesters are moving to California, the firm announced this morning, and the photographer braved a snowy hill to catch a picture of them and wave goodbye. The Fox Self-Propelled Harvesters are produced at Fox River Tractor company, 1020 N. Rankin street.

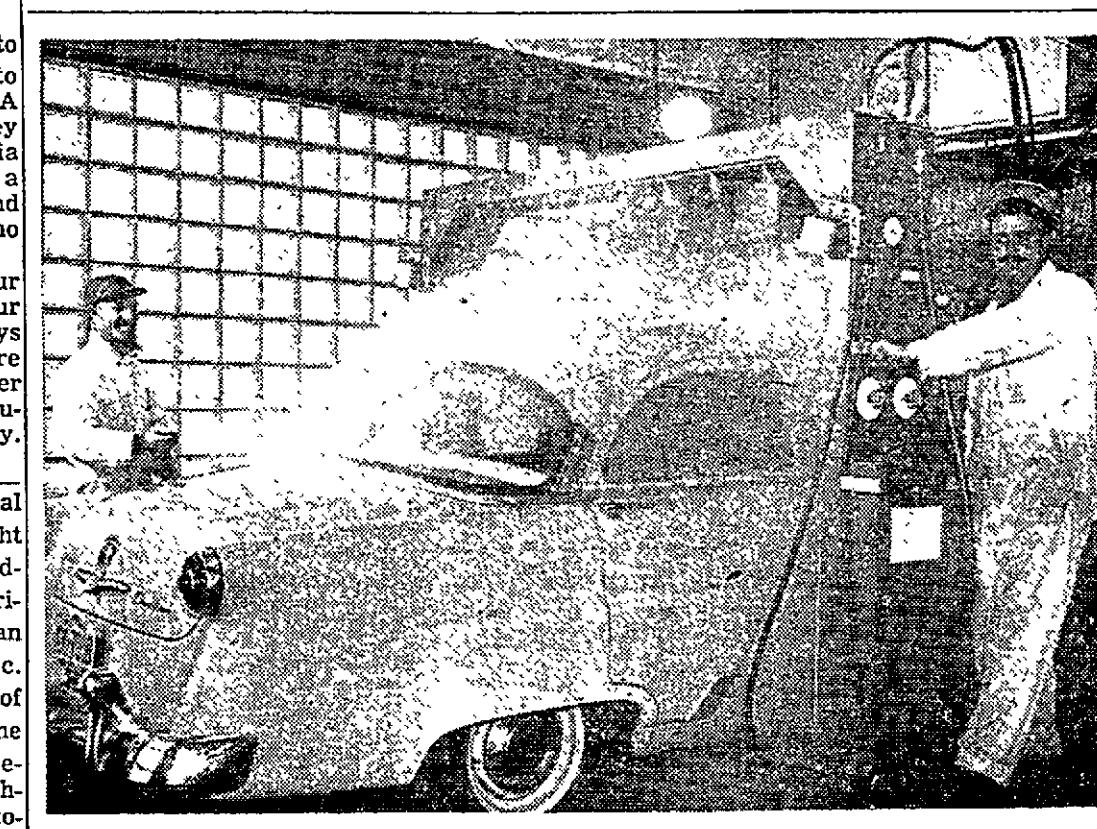

February is always a busy month at Fox River Tractor company, but the activity this year is more than usual. In addition to its regular schedule of pull-type forage harvesters, the plant is also in production of a new self-propelled model. Two of the new type units are coming from the assembly line every day which will be increased to three per day next week.

This new field machine was designed at Fox River Tractor company and has been undergoing field tests for two years. A powerful engine is built into the unit, eliminating the need for a tractor to pull it. There is a choice of four engines, either gasoline or diesel.

Novel features of the SPF meaning self-propelled Fox are: ability to roll over soft fields because large drive wheels are in front carrying the load, power steering, hydraulic controls, high clear view for operator, and a comfortable hydraulic seat. Harvesting units are mounted ahead of the drive wheels which permits opening of fields without crop loss. The standard Fox units for hay, corn or grass silage are attached or interchanged in less than 10 minutes.

The new SPF was developed for larger farms, but orders are coming in from many parts of the country including some average farms in Wisconsin. An unusual order came from an operator in Nebraska who accepted an invitation to drive the self-propelled Fox himself, then place his order for three of them.

Early shipments are now going to California and Arizona where forage harvest- ing is already in progress.

Twenty or Thirty Cars a Day can be washed by one man with ease, as against the usual five or six, with the aid of the U. S. Automatic Washmobile, shown in action at Joe Verrier Service, 204 E. Washington street. Readers are invited to see the Washmobile in action. Phone number of the station is RE 3-8071.

The Washmobile is precision-engineered from its 50 rich detergent suds with the magic power of getting under and lifting out the dirt. While the detergent covers the car completely, body, wheels and bumper — the washer "mitts" the car. A 1-minute rinse follows, leaving the car spotlessly clean.

Low side nozzles then shoot water and detergent against the wheels and the attendant brushes them. He also uses high pressure water guns. For the four final minutes of the back with its nozzle spouting wash job, two air guns—one each side—blow the water from around and under all chrome work. Then comes the drying and another car is clean.

The entire process usually takes about 10 minutes and 40 seconds. Customers get more uniformly clean cars than ever before, and they get them on time, Joe Verrier points out. Call Verrier's now to have your car washed the easy, fast way. The number is RE 3-8071.

An Eight-Course Dinner Was Served to the guests above by American Homemaker Products, Inc., at Valley Fair, a direct sales firm, selling stainless steel waterless cookware. Trained representatives, Milan Brede of Appleton, and Mrs. Lucille Drehmel of the company's Fond du Lac office, conducted the demonstration dinner program. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Skiftsch, 820 Third street, Menasha, who recently ordered a complete line of the American Homemaker cooking utensils, were hosts and hostess.

During the few hours spent in the home, customer and guests are shown the easy health-method steps to preparing meals in American Homemaker stainless steel. No peeling, paring, boiling, steaming, stirring, burning, cover lifting, utensil watching or over-cooking are a few of the highlights.

A savings of time and effort, fuel, grease, fats and oils, fruit, vegetable and meat shrinkage indicate many advantages of owning this fine equipment, the company pointed out.

A great deal of food selection and meal planning go into the average homemaker's routine. However, the most important step of all, the actual preparation of the food, might be done inadequately, according to leading health authorities, as well as American Homemaker Products, Inc. This is so mainly because of the inadequate tools lining the shelves of the modern homemaker's workshop, the kitchen. In 90 per cent of the today's homes, the cooking utensils just will not save the valuable minerals and vitamins so necessary for proper health because they are not designed to do so.

A quote from "Food for Health" by Dr. Charles H. Mayo, says: "The average housewife peels her vegetables, thus throwing away the part directly underneath the skins containing the most plentiful amount of mineral salts, then the remaining portion is boiled and the water which has also dissolved out more minerals, is thrown away."

American Homemaker Products, Inc., offers a complete line of stainless steel, the proper equipment to cook the foods right, and will show you how to use them as well. The firm offers a $5.95 gift for a home demonstration, without obligation and without a dinner, just for allowing the representative to explain the merits of the utensils. Dinners can be had by appointment. Call American Homemaker Products, Inc., at Valley Fair RE 4-8784, Fond du Lac, 18 E. Division, WA 2-2970; and Green Bay, 1138 W. Mason, HE 5-9121.

Saved From 'Golf Gap'

Who's Responsible, Lawrence Asks, For Permitting the Olympic 'Gap'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Something will have to be done about the Olympic "gap." America isn't showing up well in the winter olympics. Again the Russians are "ahead of us." As this is written Russia is way out in front, with Germany second, while the United States lags far behind in third place. How did it all happen? Was there something wrong with our "intelligence estimates"?

President Eisenhower said something the other day to his press conference about not being first in everything and how sometimes you had to be "second best," as in the Olympics. Maybe he didn't realize how important to our mental security a victory in the Olympics is — especially the winter ones. The whole thing calls for a congressional investigation. It ought to be ascertained whether under a Democratic administration the weather was colder and whether the United States then had better skaters and skiers than today. What's wrong is that we in America are influenced too much by "budgetary considerations" or foolish ideas of amateurism, as against the Russian "professional amateur." The Soviet government pays and trains its athletes all the year round, while we don't even have enough funds available to us through popular subscription to hire needed coaches. Good Hockey Showing. Also there's something wrong with the climate. The Russians have the Arctic ocean conveniently nearby, about this — our "national output" and "economic growth" certainly warrants. Then there is the problem of propaganda prestige. The United States goes down as Russia's standing goes up. Here's America, a rich country with plenty of money to buy anything, but somehow our international standing is confined to such mild-mannered sports as track and baseball and sometimes tennis. Don't the Republicans know that this calls for some big subsidies and that this is an example of "too little, too late"? Sportsmen Candidates. Maybe we do well in hockey because most of our hockey players represent New York or Detroit or Boston or other cities which have gone Democratic pretty regularly in past elections. Also, we import hockey players from Canada, which is certainly within our "common market." All this could have a bearing on presidential candidates. Sen. Humphrey comes from a northern state — Minnesota — where the winter weather is more often than not in the lower ranges of the thermometer. Sen. Kennedy, it is said, used to play hockey — or was it his brother? Anyway, the Kennedys are well qualified on sports. As for Sen. Lyndon Johnson, he doesn't have much chance, since he comes from the warm south and lately has been giving most of his time anyway to "outer space," where they say that skiing and figure-skating is not feasible, though it's possible they may have even better teams on Mars. Vice President Nixon is way out in front — he actually took time off from his duties as presiding officer of the senate to open the winter Olympics, though he perhaps made an error when he used exactly 15 words, instead of 1,500 to greet the visiting players. There's always the possibility that we may have been guilty of overemphasis on something else — golf. While the president has saved us from a "golf gap," many citizens perhaps would feel better about it if a few billions of dollars were appropriated to close the Olympic "gap." This could mean building hockey and skating rinks on the White House lawn and skis runs on the capitol grounds — or electing a Democratic administration with "bold and imaginative ideas" to restore our "fallen prestige" throughout the world in skiing, skating, and shooting accurately the missiles of the hockey rink. Maybe, Allen Dulles ought to be asked to clear up the "confusion," as he is officially designated a man of intelligence. (Copyright, 1960)

Planner Wants Questionnaire On Industry

Confidential Form Would Seek Data on Expansion, Seaway

Kenneth L. Schellie, Fox Cities regional planner, has proposed a confidential questionnaire for Fox Cities industry.

The proposed questionnaire would seek information on use of the St. Lawrence Seaway by local industry, proposed plant expansion and where plants would like to expand, and data on type of employees hired and where they live.

The answers he said, would be sent directly to his Indianapolis office and would not be available to members of the Fox - Valley Regional Planning commission or its executive committee.

Maps Completed

Schellie felt the chamber of commerce might be the agent to distribute such a questionnaire. Members of the regional planning executive committee felt an industry and commerce committee could be set up.

Preliminary base maps for the cities of Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha, the village of Little Chute and the towns of Grand Chute, Menasha and Neenah have been completed, Schellie said.

A land use survey will be completed in April, and research on history of the Fox

Cities will be done at the end of this month, he said.

Action on several requests for local assistance from Appleton have been postponed by Schellie he said. The problems were such that a quick answer could not be given, he said. A request for aid in determining location of a post office for Neenah is being taken care of, he said. The request for aid in planning a sanitary sewer system for the town of Menasha was turned down, he said because the request went beyond the limit on local assistance under the contract.

The commission was informed by the federal housing and home finance department that federal grants for funds up to $25,000 for planning on a regional basis are available. Executive Committee Chairman Charles Wood has filed a data form with the bureau. The commission awaits an answer.

Your Problems

Ann Cautions Woman to be Alert Near Careless Husband

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I was amused by all those women who wrote to tell you that their husbands accidentally hit them in their sleep. It set me to thinking. My husband always seems to be hitting me accidentally—when he's awake.

Ann Landers For example, recently we took an auto trip and stopped at a service station to get a map. I was behind him when he unfolded the map and socked me in the jaw with his elbow. I actually saw stars.

Last week when he was under dressing he whipped off his belt and the buckle caught me in the mouth. He said he didn't realize I was so close. Just yesterday he was hanging a picture and dropped the hammer on my head.

He has burned me with cigarettes several times and it's always the same excuse—he didn't know I was there. Do you think this means anything?—Kitty

Dear Kitty: It means your husband is careless, awkward, accident prone and possibly venting some subconscious hostilities in a manner which leaves him blame-free.

Your best protection is to be doubly alert when you're around him — and signal your position frequently.

DEAR ANN: The grandson of Charles Darwin appeared on TV several weeks ago and this started an argument that seems to be getting out of hand.

My husband is sold on the Darwin theory that man descended from monkey. He has many volumes on the subject and I admit the pictures of the skulls and the various stages of evolution as described are pretty convincing.

My deep religious beliefs, however, make it impossible for me to accept the concept that man came from animals. What can I say to swing him over?—No Darwinian

Dear No: Arguing the point will get you nowhere. Your husband will merely produce more scientific information with which to confound you.

The origin of man has been a favorite topic since time immemorial. Considering what man has done to himself these past 30 years I think the monkeys have a right to complain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the girl who signed herself "One Million Freckles" and my heart went out to her. I had at least two million, and they made me positively miserable. A dear friend changed my entire life when I was 22, and I'd like to pass on the advice.

This friend had an uncle who was a plastic surgeon. He was skilled at a process known as sandpaper surgery. This technique was developed to remove scars, acne pits, birthmarks and so on.

This friend knew how I felt about my freckles and suggested this minor operation. I agreed readily and it changed my entire life. Please pass the word. —Happy Jean

Dear H. J.: I have passed the word—in this column, several times. This procedure is also known as abrasive planing and is done by some dermatologists as well as plastic surgeons. Thanks for bringing it up again.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read "Ann Landers" booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Family Diary

While I know my limitations — a sewing machine intimidates me and when it comes to those Japanese flower arrangements where each little branch going up or down has an allegorical meaning — well, I'm defeated before I anchor the first blossom. When it comes to cooking I'm right in my element — or I thought I was.

At our World Affairs club meeting several weeks ago we exchanged new recipes as usual and one of them for Cherry Walnut tarts intrigued me so much that I went right home and produced a batch. Their success triggered off a regular baking spree and when the children came in from school, hungry of course, I had some new goody for them. Mine is a lucky family I thought, rather smugly and to myself. It was then that I had a rude shock.

It started at dinner when Libby took a helping of salmon casserole on her plate. "You ought to taste the salmon casserole they make at school," she said. "It's simply wonderful."

"It's awfully good at my school," Bruce said. "And their Spanish rice. It's the greatest."

Praise Cafeteria I listened silently. I also heard about the superior flavor of the meat loaf and the creaminess of the puddings. I slowly realized that I had heard this kind of talk on several other recent occasions. I almost laughed as I told myself that it was possible — barely possible — that I wasn't the great cook I thought I was. The idea was chilling. I remembered our neighbor, Mrs. Peabody, who lived next door when I was a little girl. She was always handing out horrible concoctions like gritty fudge topped with peanut butter. Mrs. Peabody thought she was a great cook too!

The very next morning I walked up the hill to Libby's school. Mrs. Jackson, the me brightly. "Mother," she said, "I bet if you were to ask her, Mrs. Jackson would be glad to give you her recipe."

I smiled back. I had not only cooked the spaghetti exactly following Mrs. Jackson's recipe but I had proved her theory as well.

Hospitable To Serve Gift Cake

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I had a baby two weeks ago. A friend of mine came over one afternoon to see the baby. She brought her a very lovely present which I opened and thanked her for. She also brought a homemade cake. I put the cake aside and thought we would have it for dinner. My husband thinks that I was very rude in not making a cup of coffee and serving the cake while she was here. Will you please tell me if this was necessary?

Answer: It was not necessary, but it would have been the hospitable thing to do.

Flower Custom

Dear Mrs. Post: Very soon our school will be having a dance. It is one of the important dances of the year. All of the girls wear corsages to this dance and it is customary for the boys to buy them. The boy I have invited to go with me is from another town and I am afraid he will not think to send me flowers. I don't want to be the only girl at the dance without flowers. Would it be proper for me to write and tell him about this?

Answer: I'm sorry, but you cannot ask him to send you flowers. The only thing you can do is to have substitute flowers ready in the refrigerator in case he brings you none. You can tell him that your father has given them to you if he seems embarrassed at not having sent you flowers.

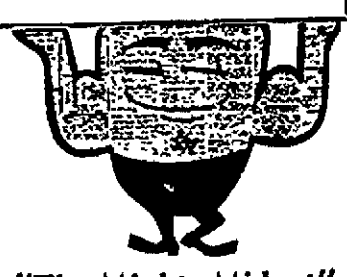

Long Overdue

Dear Mrs. Post: My sister was married six months ago and up until now has not sent thank-you notes for any of her wedding presents. There is no real reason for it, except that she kept putting it off from one day to another and now she feels it is too late to write them. Shouldn't thank-you notes still be written even though six months have elapsed?

Answer: I think she should start immediately and write every one of those overdue thank-you notes.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-32, entitled "Table Linens," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Lawrence Thespians Ready Winter Play

A broken toe, 18 scene changes, complete musical accompaniment and the first original costumes in two decades mark the Lawrence college theater's winter production of Bertolt Brecht's "The Good Woman of Setzuan," scheduled for March 2, 3, 4, and 5 in Stansbury theater.

Brecht, who also wrote the "Threepenny Opera" and "The Caucasian Chalk Circle," is the innovator of a new kind of realism. Function is his primary concern, whereby the set is the tool of the actors, who portray their characters through observation and imitation, not by trying to "be" the actual person. ## Scene Shifts

To carry out the late playwright's concept of staging, a series of scene shifts to be flown or dropped onto the stage in 10 or 15 seconds had to be constructed. Joseph Hopfensperger of the drama department supervised work on a set of screens which can be utilized to depict the Oriental atmosphere of a tobacco store, town square, factory, park, or court room. All by quick adjustment of these screens. A method of "flying" three gods off the stage in a pink cloud also had to be devised. Hopfensperger, in the course of his labors, broke a toe when a heavy "wheel" fell on it.

Costumes for the 29-member cast have been designed and created under the supervision of Mrs. Leo Driessen of Kaukauna and will become a permanent part of the theater wardrobe. She was assisted by several Lawrence students. This is the first time in more than 20 years that the Lawrence college theater has costumed its own show.

Recitative Form Music throughout the entire show is directed by Karen Beck, a junior from Lomira. Five songs are interspersed within the program, most delivered in recitative form. Dan Gilmore, Fond du Lac, will furnish a clarinet accompaniment.

Brecht, who considered himself "the Einstein of the new stage form," created his Berliner Ensemble in East Germany to carry out his staging theories. His aim, according to Mordecai Gorelik, was to "recondition audiences accustomed to romantically slanted, Freudian drama."

"The Good Woman of Setzuan" has a moral, "showing what kind of things a man chooses or avoids." It is a story of three gods who come down to earth to find out if there is any goodness in human beings, and find it beneath the poverty-stricken exterior of a Chinese woman.

Tickets are available at the box office of the Music-Drama center daily between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and 4 and 6 p.m.

Among the Ten Local Students who are members of the Lawrence college choir, which will appear on the Lawrence community artist series at 8:15 p.m. Monday evening in Memorial chapel are from left, Edward Boehm, Jr., Menasha; James Mattern, Menasha; Donald Tyrivier, Neenah; John Bauerlein, 1353 W. Lawrence street; Judy Kollath, Black Creek; Daril Riley, 1136 W. Oklahoma street; and Tom McGuire, Menasha. The ensemble, directed by LaVahn Maesch, will leave early in March for its 30th annual concert tour of Wisconsin and Illinois cities.

Fox Cities Singers To Tour With Choir

Ten of the members of the 30th anniversary Lawrence college touring choir, which presents a community artist series program in Memorial chapel at 8:15 p.m. Monday, are from the Fox Cities.

Appleton singers in the 75-voice ensemble which is directed by LaVahn Maesch, director of the Lawrence conservatory of music are John Bauerlein, 1353 W. Lawrence street; Carolyn Rosenthal, 531 N. Bateman street; and Daril Riley, 1136 W. Oklahoma street. Menashans are Edward Boehm, Jr., 538 1/2 Sixth street; Jeffrey Klenke, 906 Tayco drive; James Mattern, 621 Fifth street; and Thomas McGuire, 655 DePere street.

Other choristers include Donald Tyrivier, route 2, Neenah; Judith Kollath, Black Creek; and Sharon Wohlt, Fremont. The 30th anniversary season of the choir also marks the Music-Drama Festival year celebrating the opening of Lawrence's $1,400,000 building dedicated to these two arts.

Reaches Many The anniversary season also sees the Lawrence choir reaching its greatest audience, not in person, but through the medium of the Lawrence radio tape series, on which it is a primary feature. In addition, the choir was heard on a special half-hour NBC national Christmas broadcast and in the fall was included in four nation-wide broadcasts of the "Great Choirs of America Series."

The 75 voice choir has been touring since 1930, and in that time has had only two directors, the late Dr. Carl J. Waterman who founded the group and Prof. Maesch who has directed it since 1953.

Although the curtain always parts on a well-organized ensemble, the Lawrence choir has had its share of backstage woes. One year a measles epidemic put half of the men in quarantine in one fraternity house, although the singing members themselves were unaffected by the spots. The show had to go on, so local medical authorities sug-

Britons Delighted by Margaret's Choice

the keen society photographer, who lived in an arty Pimlico studio, was never mentioned.

British social circles, even those closest to the royal family, were flabbergasted. Dozens of highly eligible aristocrats had surrounded the princess, but she gave her heart, to the astonishment of all, to the young man who didn't seem to be in the running.

After admiring the ring this morning, Armstrong-Jones and the princess strolled about the lodge. Yellow crocus buds are beginning to peep out of the turf, and Armstrong-Jones bent down to pluck the largest in sight. He gave her the flower, and they laughed merrily.

Armstrong-Jones occupied one of the six guest rooms in the stone and stucco lodge, and he had to be up early because important guests were expected.

Seen as Love Match
Staid Britain continued to whirl with delight over the engagement announcement.

The nation hailed it as a real leap year love match for the pretty princess who once forsook romance for duty with predictions her choice would strengthen democratic ties between the royal family and the people.

The betrothal surprised even Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Anglican archbishop of Canterbury, but the British primate was described as "very pleased with the news."

It was the archbishop whom Margaret had consulted before renouncing her love for divorced group Capt. Peter Townsend in October, 1955.

Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express noted that the gay princess "took one decision which cost her pain; now she takes another which will lead only to a fuller happiness."

A Buckingham palace spokesman said Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip "are delighted because this is such an obviously happy match."

The Paris newspaper Journal quoted Townsend's wife as saying Margaret's engagement.

"We are very happy and wish Margaret a very great happiness," Mrs. Townsend told the paper. "We have known of the announcement for some time. We rejoice with all of England. We immediately sent a telegram of felicitation."

Townsend could not be reached for comment. No wedding date has been set, but the colorful ceremony probably will be held this spring or summer — avoiding what would have been spinsterish overtones to Margaret's thirtieth birthday on Aug. 21.

Met in Early 1958
The vivacious princess met Armstrong-Jones at a May-fair party early in 1958, a little more than two years after her dramatic break with Townsend, who married a Belgian photographer last December.

Armstrong-Jones had been seen frequently with the royal family during recent months, but everyone assumed he was only in the role of a favorite royal photographer.

Armstrong-Jones, 29, is only five months older than Margaret and not much taller than the 5-1 princess. Slim, an affair-haired he is known for a good sense of humor.

Before the wedding, the queen is expected to confer a title on him, probably making him a baron or earl.

Even with her marriage to a commoner, Margaret will remain a princess, unless she renounces her title.

Margaret also will keep her position as fourth in line of succession to the throne, after the queen's three children.

Higher Income
The marriage will boost the princess' annual government income from 9,000 pounds ($25,000) to 15,000 pounds ($42,000).

Margaret and her fiancé, chaperoned by Queen Mother Elizabeth, are spending the weekend at a hanging lodge in Royal Windsor park. On Monday, Armstrong-Jones takes up residence at Buckingham palace at the invitation of the Queen and Prince Philip.

He will spend a lot of his time preparing for the wedding, expected to take place in Westminster abbey.

Armstrong-Jones, a graduate of Eton and Cambridge, comes from an upper middle-class family. His father, Ronald O. L. Armstrong-Jones, is an eminent jurist.

His mother, a sister of stage designer Oliver Messel, married the earl of Rosse in 1935 after her marriage to the jurist was dissolved.

Always creative and artistically, Armstrong-Jones became interested in photography while still at school.

After college, Armstrong-Jones studied photography under Baron, the best known photographer of his day and a close friend of Prince Philip.

Just over three years ago Armstrong-Jones took his first portrait of royalty—the young duke of Kent. Since then he has photographed most members of the royal family. He took the official birthday portrait of Margaret last year that was criticized by some British critics.

Although the princess and Armstrong-Jones were together often at private parties, not the slightest hint of a romance leaked out until this official announcement last night from Clarence House, the princess' London home.

"It is with the greatest pleasure that Queen Elizabeth, the queen mother, announced the betrothal of her beloved daughter, the Princess Margaret, to Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones, to which union the queen has gladly given her consent."

The Golden Years

Retired People Have Great Gift to Gab

BY THOMAS COLLINS

A great gift that comes to all day. I may be able to scrape up a couple of playmates—other retired men I can go to ball games with, fish with, argue with and maybe raise money for worthy causes.

"The trouble is that men scatter like a covey of quail when they retire. Playmates are hard to find.

"But if I go back to work it will be on a job where I have absolute authority to do it as I see fit. After age 65 I have won the right to that kind of peace—or else they can get another boy. The ability to lay down this condition, then walk out if it is not met, is not enough. The job must be the kind where the full authority comes naturally. A business of your own can provide it. So can certain sales franchises."

Whitman is one of the growing army of retired people who are asking questions instead of sulking away when they retire. You'll see more of his type in books and in politics as time goes on.

Sen. McCarthy Warns Against South's Wishes

North Will Decide Election, Humphrey Campaigner Says

Green Bay — Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) warned Democrats Friday night against giving too much weight to southern wishes at the national party convention.

McCarthy spent four hours in Green Bay after a day of campaigning in Oshkosh and Appleton for his home state senior colleague, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, candidate in the April 5 Democratic presidential primary.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson's chances for the presidential nomination are slight because he comes from Texas, McCarthy said.

Convention Power

"The south is going to have more to say at the convention than in the election. We are going to have to win the election in the north. A loss of a couple big (northern) states would mean more than all of the south except Texas," McCarthy said.

Democrats from states with "consistent progressive democratic traditions of the middie west" must stick together, McCarthy said. Humphrey consistently voted for farmers while, Kennedy's record "is a little mixed," he added. The Democratic nominee must have a clear consistent record of opposition to Agriculture Sec. Benson, McCarthy stressed.

Snow flurries are expected tonight in the northern Appalachians and upper Lakes, with snow in the central Mississippi valley, central plains, central Rockies and the great basin. It will be colder in the northeast with slowly rising temperatures slated for the Gulf states and southern plains.

Expect Good Weekend for Winter Sports

Fox Cities area residents will be in for a perfect winter sports weekend, the weatherman says. There is enough snow for skiing throughout the Fox river valley.

Temperatures are expected to remain below freezing with a top in the mid 20s. Skies will be partly cloudy to cloudy.

The Fox Cities weather picture, however, differs from that of other sections of the nation.

Fresh snow blanketed the Rockies and the plains today as midwest and New England residents continued digging out from under.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for parts of Kansas and Oklahoma.

The new storm, gaining momentum in the southern plains, threatened to dump an additional four inches of snow in some areas.

Patrolman Not Told Charges

Capt. Decker Says Complaints Given To Traffic Committee

County police Capt. Ronald Decker today testified that he had not talked to a discharged patrolman about all charges against him, but each of the charges were given to the traffic police and radio committee as were received.

Decker was the first witness at this morning's resumption of the hearing into Irving J. Partika's appeal of discharge from the county patrol. Partika, route 2, Horntown, was discharged Feb. 8 on the basis of 14 charges leveled against him by the committee.

The complaints ranged from refusing to accept an assignment to sleeping on duty and the misuse of the county's mileage payment system.

At the first session Feb. 18, Partika denied 11 of the 14 counts and explained his actions in three counts.

Letter Cited

Attorney Sam Sigman introduced a letter from Myrt Allender, operator of Myrt's restaurant, Shiocton, in which the woman denied complaining that Partika spent too much time in the restaurant. One of the charges against Partika is that he was spending too much duty time in a restaurant. Sgt. Lowell Veitch had testified on the 18th that the woman had told him about the long periods of time Partika had been spending in her restaurant.

Capt. Decker testified he had talked to Partika on several occasions concerning the patrolman's activities and that his department sergeant also discussed Partika's service in the department.

The captain admitted under cross-examination he had not taken disciplinary action against Partika.

When pressed by Partika's attorney, Samuel Sigman, the captain explained that his idea of disciplinary action is suspension.

Corporation Counsel Raymond P. Dohr expected to call committee chairman Patrick Heenan to testify later this morning. Dohr also indicated he plans to cross-examine Partika.

Sigman indicated at the close of the first session of the hearing that he would call either Sheriff Robert Heinritz or Undersheriff Donald Heinritz for testimony.

Time to Reorganize U.S. Defense Setup, Taylor Says

Single Chief, Military Council Proposed for Separate Functions

BY GENERAL MAXWELL D. TAYLOR, Ret.

The attic of the defense department needs a thorough housecleaning to throw out many outmoded concepts, illusions, shibboleths, and fallacies. This should start with a re-writing of the roles and missions of the three services.

The reorganization in 1958 made the primary function of the military departments one of organizing, equipping, and training forces having the distinguishing characteristics of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. For operations, these forces pass to the control of field commanders under the strategic direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

But the problem remains of redefining what we mean by army, navy, and air force.

Last of Series

What makes them different one from the other? What justifies their independent existence?

I would define them as those services charged respectively with providing the forces necessary for sustained combat in a land, sea, and air environment (I avoid here consideration of operations in space, in which all services have a potential interest.)

National Arsenal

In the case of the Army, the land environment would include the land itself and the contiguous layers of air and sea necessary for ground operations. Fundamental would be the right of each service to possess all the weapons and equipment habitually needed in the execution of its functions. Thus, more than one service might properly possess the same weapons.

In November, 1956, I urged Sec. Wilson to adopt what I call the national arsenal concept with regard to the new missiles. Under this concept, any service would be allowed to develop and produce any missile which the defense department determined to be needed in the national defense and technically within its competence to produce.

Once the missile was in existence, it would belong to a national arsenal and be used by any service needing it for approved missions. I would now propose to make this national arsenal concept applicable to all weapons and equipment.

Army Dissatisfied

This proposed revision of roles and missions would affect primarily the army and the air force. The navy has been a satisfied service and a staunch defender of the status quo. Navy leaders have viewed with some amusement, I am sure, the unhappiness of the army in its relations to the air force, and have tended to say "I told you so" to army chiefs who struggled so hard for unification to the ultimate detriment of their role in sustained ground combat.

Since 1947, the army has depended upon the air force for tactical air support, tactical air lift, and long range air transport. The army has the cobwebs fogging the thought processes of our senior leadership.

Great Fallacies

Related to the great fallacy that massive retaliation is an all-purpose strategy is the fallacy that limited wars can be taken care of in the course of our general war preparations. It is also alleged that modern atomic weapons reduce the need for manpower. I know from experience that this is a fallacy insofar as it applies to the army.

One other fallacy which should be mentioned is that a good offensive is the best defensive. This statement is usually used to justify additional funds for the strategic air force at the expense of continental air defense. Yet it lies in the face of the fact that a winning team in any game must have a balance of offensive and defensive strength.

There are some major changes to be made within the defense department to facilitate the implementation of the new military program.

Dissolve Joint Chiefs

I would dissolve the JCS as it now exists and replace it by a single defense chief of staff for the one man functions and by a new advisory body called provisionally the supreme military council. The new defense chief of staff would be assisted by two deputy chiefs of staff of the military services other than his own. He would wear four or five stars and be the senior military officer reporting directly to the secretary of defense and the president. He would have public responsibility corresponding to his great authority.

The supreme military council, consisting of three 4-star officers of the army, navy, and air force, would be advisory to the secretary of defense, the president, and congress. They would be either retired officers or officers on their last tour of active duty and would not be carried on the rolls of any service.

This new status would tend to place the council somewhere between the executive and legislative branches of government. The device offers promising possibilities of meeting a requirement not presently filled by the joint chiefs of staff system.

Sort Out Functions

By sorting out the committee type and the operational-type functions of the joint chiefs of staff and by fixing clear responsibility, it would appear we would overcome most of the disadvantages in the present JCS system. These changes have the great merit of establishing a system with a reasonable chance of surviving if war comes. The present committee system would break down within the first few hours or days. There is one other essential precondition to the implementation of the military program—a fundamental change in our national attitude. It must be made clear to our citizens that the nation will face a serious crisis beginning about 1961.

It will require sacrifice on the part of every one of us if we are to get over this dangerous period without intolerable risk. The simplest form of this sacrifice will be the payment of more taxes. I would suggest we are talking in terms of a budget of $50 to $55 billion a year for the next five years. Once the gap is closed, subsequent budgets need not be so high. This requirement for a bigger budget will exist regardless of any transitory shift in Soviet attitude and behavior. We will also have to commit more of our ablest sons to the profession of arms. Army strength should be increased to a million men, its strength in 1955. The overall manpower required by all services will amount to at least 2.6 million. All the foregoing actions should be taken to the sure notes of a certain trumpet, giving to friend and foe alike a clear expression of our purpose and our motives. Our adjustments should not be mistaken for a new spurt in an armament race. Actions to correct an imbalance of power and to replace the concept of massive retaliation by one

3 Indicted in Police Scandals

Chicago — The first indictments growing out of the Chicago police scandal have been voted by a special grand jury investigating charges of a lineup between police and underworld characters. Three policemen were named in true bills Thursday charging larceny and perjury. Nearly 100 policemen have been implicated, though not charged, in the scandal so far. Named in the true bills were John P. Begley, Robert J. Polite and Detective Henry Pates. Begley, of the Hyde of flexible response are measures conducive not to war but to world peace.

Park district, and Polite, of the Brunside District, were charged with the $500 burglary of a department store warehouse Oct. 2. Pates of the Warren Avenue district was charged with perjury. Police personnel to hold outside jobs. The burglary of the warehouse allegedly happened while Begley held a job as watchman there. Police department regulations forbid personnel to hold outside jobs.

Constitutional Change Flounders Near Finish

Little Hope for Seaway Aid Measure in Face of Coming Presidential Election

Madison — A proposed constitutional amendment that would allow the state to finance port improvements is floundering near the end of its course.

And with attention turned on presidential candidates in the April 5 primary, there's little hope for the proposal in a public referendum the same day.

The suggested constitutional change is a by-product of the flurry of activity associated with Wisconsin's preparations for St. Lawrence seaway craft.

Ordered Study The legislature in 1955 ordered an interim study of the management, development and operation of the state's Great Lakes ports.

The study disclosed a need for financial assistance if certain communities were to develop port facilities to their fullest potential.

But the attorney general's office held Wisconsin's constitution did not permit the state to lend such assistance.

Cooled Down A resolution to amend the constitutional ban on state debt for internal improvements sailed through the 1957 legislature. It was authored by 16 assemblymen.

As required by law, an identical resolution was introduced in the 1959 legislature. It adopted 23-4 in the senate, concurred in 81-12 by the assembly. Consideration by the voters of Wisconsin was set for April 5, 1960. At that point, the enthusiasm of state officials at least, cooled decidedly.

Decide How Cities such as Milwaukee, Green Bay, Kenosha and Sheboygan already have spent a lot of their own money in building port facilities and saw no merit in their tax dollars being used to develop possible competitors.

The proposed constitutional change doesn't spell out what form the state appropriations should take. The legislature, still would have to decide whether the money outlays should be outright gifts, loans or grants-in-aid.

Rich Reward A third, and possibly overriding factor, is the rich reward Wisconsin already has reaped from the seaway without state intervention.

According to Don Wood, port adviser of the Department of Resources Development, the seaway created 500 new jobs in its initial year of operation. Large overtime earnings for many longshoremen were another individual benefit.

In terms of overseas tonnage, Milwaukee tripled its traffic, Green Bay almost doubled it, and Sheboygan's export-import trade increased about 35 per cent.

A War Song That Wrote Itself

BY LOUISE HALL THARP

Just four days after the Confederates fired on Fort Sumter, the 12th Massachusetts marched through the streets of Boston on their way to the Worcester and Western Railroad station. Every one of them was a volunteer, and proud of it, and everything that was youth and eagerness and ad-

Did you know that America's most enduring war song stemmed from a southern camp meeting tune? Or that its words came almost as a dream to a Boston society belle, Julia Ward Howe? This fascinating account of the birth of the battle hymn was written by the author of a book on Mrs. Howe and her family — "Three Saints and a Sinner."

venture was in the air that April day as they passed in review for the crowds to see and cheer. This was the great crusade, and the boys in new blue uniforms, with glistening guns and bright bayonets, were on the march to make things right.

To cap it all, they had a song — a truly great marching song that every outfit in the Union Army would be singing before long.

Music by Southerner

Not many of these troops knew it, but this music had been composed by a southerner named William Steffe. It had started life about ten years earlier as a camp meeting hymn in Charleston, S. C., and Steffe called it "Say Brothers will we meet you over on the other shore?" One way or another, the regulars of the Second U. S. Infantry had picked up the melody, fitted new words to it, and brought it along with them to Boston. That was where the 12th Massachusetts learned it, and anyone who saw them on their way to war and heard them boom out the words, "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, his soul is marching on," could tell it was their favorite.

No one quite knew where the train would take them, but nearly everyone in Boston was out to see them get on it. Somewhere in the crowd that day was a small, attractive woman, just past 40, and the song she heard the soldiers sing was one she never forgot.

In the Boston of 1861, only a stranger would have asked who Julia Ward Howe was, but the replies would have been as varied as the points of view. Most people knew her as a staunch opponent of slavery and the wife of Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, reformer, abolitionist, and director of Perkins Institution for the Blind.

Red-Headed Belle

Old friends had a different version. Mrs. Howe had been the wealthy Julia Ward of Bond street, New York. Her father was Samuel Ward, head of the great banking firm of Prime, Ward and King. She was related to the Astors by a marriage of her colorful brother Sam Ward, forty-niner, Wall street plunger, and playmate of princes. An authentic New York belle, red-haired Julia Ward had descended upon Boston society several times a year to captivate young men with her operatic voice and wicked wit. Nearly everything she did both shocked and fascinated her father's Boston friends.

Other acquaintances remembered Julia Ward Howe as a poet, whose first published book, Passion Flowers, had set Boston on its collective ear. This was followed by a short-lived play produced in New York, which had tongues wagging all the faster. It was about a "fallen woman!"

Weds Dr. Howe

When, at the age of 42, he married the 24-year-old Julia Ward. Dr. Howe was as handsome as a hero of a Nineteenth Century novel, and devoted to the teaching of blind children. His pupil Laura Bridgman was the first blind and deaf child to learn to communicate with the world around her.

When news of the fall of Sumter reached Boston, it was like him to write Gov. Andrew: "If I can be of any use . . . (save that of spy), command me." The doctor was now 60 years old and got no war horse to ride, but he was appointed to the United States Sanitary Commission, forerunner of the American Red Cross. His first assignment was in Washington.

One of the high points of the Howes' stay was an interview with the president. Mrs. Howe recorded a vivid impression of Lincoln seated on a sofa, directly below Stuart's portrait of George Washington. While the men talked of war and politics, she occupied herself in contrasting Washington's calm features on canvas with Lincoln's furrowed cheek and brow.

On Nov. 18, 1861, a picnic was planned across the Potomac in territory occupied until recently by Confederates. Carriage after carriage filled with gentlemen in high silk hats and ladies in crinolines, drove out of town over the bridge and along the narrow road.

It Came as Dream

To everyone's dismay, the review was interrupted by the appearance of southern skirmishers. Mrs. Howe's coachman wheeled the carriage around and headed for Washington at a gallop — a pace which soon became a crawl as all the other drivers attempted the same thing and troops marched along the same road. Mrs. Howe remembered that "to beguile the rather tedious drive, we sang from time to time, snatches of the army songs so popular at that time." One of them was the song she had heard the 12th Massachusetts sing when the Civil war first began: "John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave, his soul is marching on."

Julia Ward Howe had a beautiful mezzo-soprano voice. In girlhood she had had musical training equal to that of an opera star, and as she joined in the singing the soldiers called out, "Good for you, Ma'am."

"Why don't you write some good words for that stirring tune?" someone asked.

That night, Julia Ward Howe went to bed at the Willard Hotel and "as usual slept soundly." Troops marched in the streets below but she was not conscious of hearing them. "I awoke in the gray of the morning twilight," she recalled, "and as I lay waiting for the dawn, the long lines of the poem began to twine themselves" in her mind.

Pickets, Campfires

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord . . ." — line by line, like the measured cadence of marching feet she had heard so often, the words began to come to her. Intermingled with some of the great phrases of the Old Testament was a vision of the long blue lines, the pickets huddled around campfires, and the righteousness, the anger, and the dream which the nation's youth had taken into battle.

"I must get up and write these verses before I forget them," she told herself. Later it seemed to Mrs. Howe as if the poem had come to her as a revelation from a source beyond herself. She had good reason to think so. For years she had studied and practiced the art of poetry, counting the syllables, laboring over her rhymes, working for hours on a single stanza. In this whole original manuscript she crossed out or changed only four words, and a final stanza was discarded because it spoiled the climax.

Prison Glorified

After writing it down, she fell asleep for awhile, and when she awoke she could remember what had happened but found that she had forgotten the words.

The story varies as to when the army began singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Probably it was taken up simultaneously by more than one regiment. Chaplain Charles Cardwell McCabe of the 122nd Ohio Volunteer Infantry read the poem in the Atlantic and was so impressed with it that he memorized the words. Marching along with the Ohioans, he taught them the "Battle Hymn" to the melody he doubtless knew as a hymn tune.

Captured at Winchester, McCabe was sent to Libby Prison along with hundreds of other northern troops herded together in a great bare room. Suddenly a Negro who brought food to the men leaned over and whispered to one of the groups. There had been a great victory at a place called Gettysburg. Men jumped to their feet, cheering, crying, embracing one another hysterically, and in the center of the room Chaplain McCabe stood up and began to sing: "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord!"

Others Join Him

As he came to the chorus, every voice joined in, and the walls of Libby prison echoed to the thankful words of "Glory, glory, hallelujah!" as few other men could have sung them.

Someone told Mrs. Howe of a large meeting in Washington, attended by the president, where McCabe told of his wartime experiences. When he spoke of that night in Libby Prison, he raised his voice again in the "Battle Hymn."

"The effect was magical, people shouted, wept, and sang together . . . and above the applause was heard the voice of Abraham Lincoln, exclaiming while the tears rolled down his cheeks, 'Sing it again!'"

After the war, Mrs. Howe became a woman's suffrage leader and continued to write, turning out travel books, essays, and poetry. When Julia Ward Howe died, in 1910, the song that played the 12th Massachusetts off to war, which she had made into a mighty battle hymn for all Americans, North and South, was sung at her funeral by the blind children from Perkins Institution.

Distributed by AP Newsfeatures

Deeply Moved by the stirring melody the Union soldiers were singing as they marched past her Washington home, Julia Ward Howe rose in the night to write the immortal song.

Hugh Lavey Was Found Guilty Twice In Lower Courts

Chilton—The Dec. 9 Calumet county circuit court decision against Hugh Lavey, route 3, Chilton, on a fishing violation will be appealed to the state supreme court.

Lavey's attorney has made application for the appeal and has one year in which to file formally, Franklin J. Schmieder, Calumet county district attorney, said Friday.

Lavey was arrested Sept. 29 by conservation authorities and charged with taking game fish without a license. Lavey had picked from the waters of Lake Winnebago what the wardens described as "stunned" pike while observing commercial rough fish netting operations with a lawyer companion, Walter Menzies, Butler.

He was found guilty by a justice court jury Oct. 7 and fined $50. He furnished appeal bond of $75 and appealed the decision to circuit court.

Found Guilty
There he contended the fish were dead and were being gathered as evidence to be exhibited at public hearings protesting rough fish netting operations in the lake. Menzies, who is chief spokesman for a group opposed to the conservation department's methods of operation on Winnebago, supported Lavey's testimony.

The state said the fish were alive when taken from the water and Lavey was found guilty. Circuit Judge Helmuth F. Arps fined Lavey $75 but granted a stay so that an appeal could be filed.

The fire spread to the gas tank on the tractor and engulfed the interior of the shed in flames in a matter of seconds.

Manawa, Tigerton Meet for Title

Wolves Edge Iola, 59-58; Marion Loses in Overtime

Marion Sub-District

Friday's Results: Manawa 50, Iola 38. Tigerton 59, Marion 56 (ot). Tonight's Games: Iola vs. Marion (7:15). Manawa vs. Tigerton (8:15).

Marion — Manawa and Tigerton won close victories Friday night in the Marion sub-district basketball tournament. Manawa edged Iola 59-58, while it took Tigerton an overtime period to defeat Marion, 59-56.

Tigerton and Manawa will meet tonight to determine the sub-district champion.

The lead alternated in the Iola-Manawa game. Five points was the biggest lead either team held and with 30 seconds to go, Manawa's Tom Dorcas broke a 58-56 deadlock with a field goal that gave Manawa a two point edge. A free throw by Jim Martin gave Manawa 59 points while Iola managed to sink two free throws and come within one point at the final gun. Joe Leean scored 27 points for Iola while John Feustel led Manawa with 17. The teams were even from the floor, but Manawa scored 11 out of 17 on the free throw line while Iola sunk 10 out of 15.

Tigerton led for most of its encounter with Marion. At one point of the third quarter Tigerton held a 10-point advantage but Marion kept whittling away at their lead until with 1:30 to go, the score was knotted at 48-48.

A couple of quick scoring exchanges brought it to 52-52 and Marion's Larry Krueger missed last second shot as the horn blew.

In the overtime period, Schoenberger and Dick Seefeldt each scored a field goal to give Tigerton a 56-52 lead. The winners picked up an additional field goal and free throw while Marion scored a field goal and two free throws.

Krueger totaled 20 points and grabbed 21 rebounds for the evening. Unofficially, Marion outbounded Tigerton, 53-40. Schoenberger scored 18 for Tigerton.

Elsewhere in the league, Chilton notched its sixth win by downing Sheboygan Falls 61-57 and Plymouth nipped New Holstein 44-41.

At Kiel, Valders took a first period lead 19-15 but fell behind midway in the second quarter as Dave Bunge connected for 12 points in the period to pace a 28 point spurge.

Training Begins for Homemaker Series

Oshkosh — A series of Winnebago county homemaker leader training meetings on the topic, "Savory Sandwiches," will begin next week.

Mrs. Russell Mitchell, Berlin, will be hostess Monday for Eureka center; Mrs. Leon Derber, route 2, Omro, Tuesday, for Omro center; Mrs. Vincent Haase, route 2, Neenah, Wednesday, for Neenah center; Mrs. Howard Beck, route 4, Oshkosh, Thursday, for Allenville center; and Mrs. Harry Stewart, Van Dyne, Friday, for Oshkosh center; Winchester center meets March 7 at Grace Lutheran church.

Miss Lois Klusmeyer will conduct the series with all meetings beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Project leaders will have an opportunity to make a variety of sandwich fillings, both the hearty lunchbox type and the party or tea type. A packed lunch that is to be eaten at school or away from the home should furnish one-fourth to one-third of the person's food needs for the day, Miss Klusmeyer points out.

Since sandwiches make up the major portion of a lunch, it is important that protein foods be included in the fillings.

The freezing of sandwiches will add variety to the lunch box and save time for the packer. The best fillings for frozen sandwiches are peanut butter, cheddar, American or cream cheese, sliced or ground meat, fish or chicken. Sandwiches should be wrapped in moisture, vapor proof paper and sealed. Label and pack them in a box to prevent crushing during freezing. Allow sandwiches to thaw in their wrappings at room temperature. Two sandwiches wrapped together will probably thaw in about three hours.

Blackout Lights Used To Track Poachers

Pierre, S. D. —(P)—

Game wardens are using them to increase the safety factor in chasing down persons poaching game by night. The state service began installing the blackout lights on patrol cars after two wardens were injured when their vehicles collided headon as they were attempting to trap a deer poacher.

Calico Tulip Garden Looks Pretty Planted in Sand Box

BY CAPPY DICK

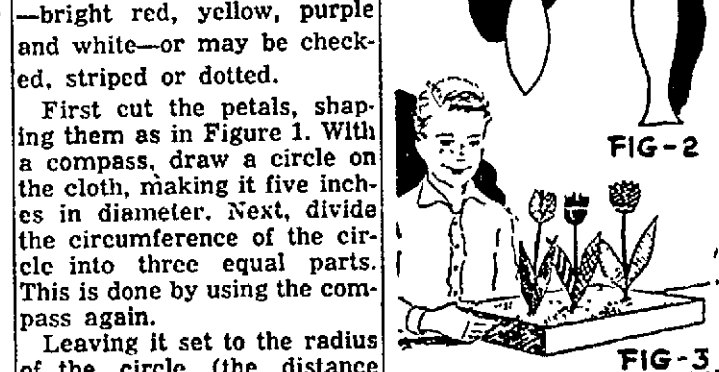

A calico tulip garden is a colorful novelty for boys and girls to make. The pieces of cloth may be of solid colors—bright red, yellow, purple and white—or may be checked, striped or dotted.

First cut the petals, shaping them as in Figure 1. With a compass, draw a circle on the cloth, making it five inches in diameter. Next, divide the circumference of the circle into three equal parts. This is done by using the compass again.

Leaving it set to the radius of the circle (the distance from the center to the edge), use it to mark off six points an equal distance apart on the circumference. Erase every other point, leaving three. These will be the points of the three petals of the pattern as in Figure 1. Lightly outline the shape of the three petals, fold the cloth in two and cut two sets of petals at the same time.

Fit the petals together so there will be six in all. Stick a fine wire up through the center of them, then down through them. Twist the wire beneath the petals. From green calico cut two leaves, "plant" them in a box of sand (Figure 3) and place it in the kitchen window.

Cut petals and leaves according to patterns.

flower, winding the base of the two leaves in it.

Melt some paraffin in a pan. Dip the leaves and stem into it until the leaves petals have enough wax on them to make them stiff. Dip the petals into the wax several times, holding the flower upside down so the petals hang down until they, too, are stiff. Curve the tips to make them look natural.

Make several of these tulips, "plant" them in a box of sand (Figure 3) and place it in the kitchen window.

America's Chances for Another First Hinge on Today's Battle With Russian Hockey Team

Squaw Valley, Calif. — America's chance for a third gold medal in the 1960 winter Olympic games hinged today on the battle between the surprisingly tough U.S. hockey team and the rugged Soviets.

Interest in the game outstripped that for the 10,000-meter men's speed skating and the 50-kilometer cross-country ski marathon that preceded it.

Heavy crowds were expected for the final weekend. The 11-day program ends Sunday.

riod, the Papermakers scoring six straight after Hoppe sank a free throw to open the period. McGuire hit two jump shots to make the score 43-29 and Rooyakkers scored on a tip-in and Bill Krenger hit a push shot to make the score 45-31 midway through the third period.

Shawano closed the gap to nine points, but another tip-in by Rooyakkers and a free throw by Hearden made the score 48-36 going into the final frame.

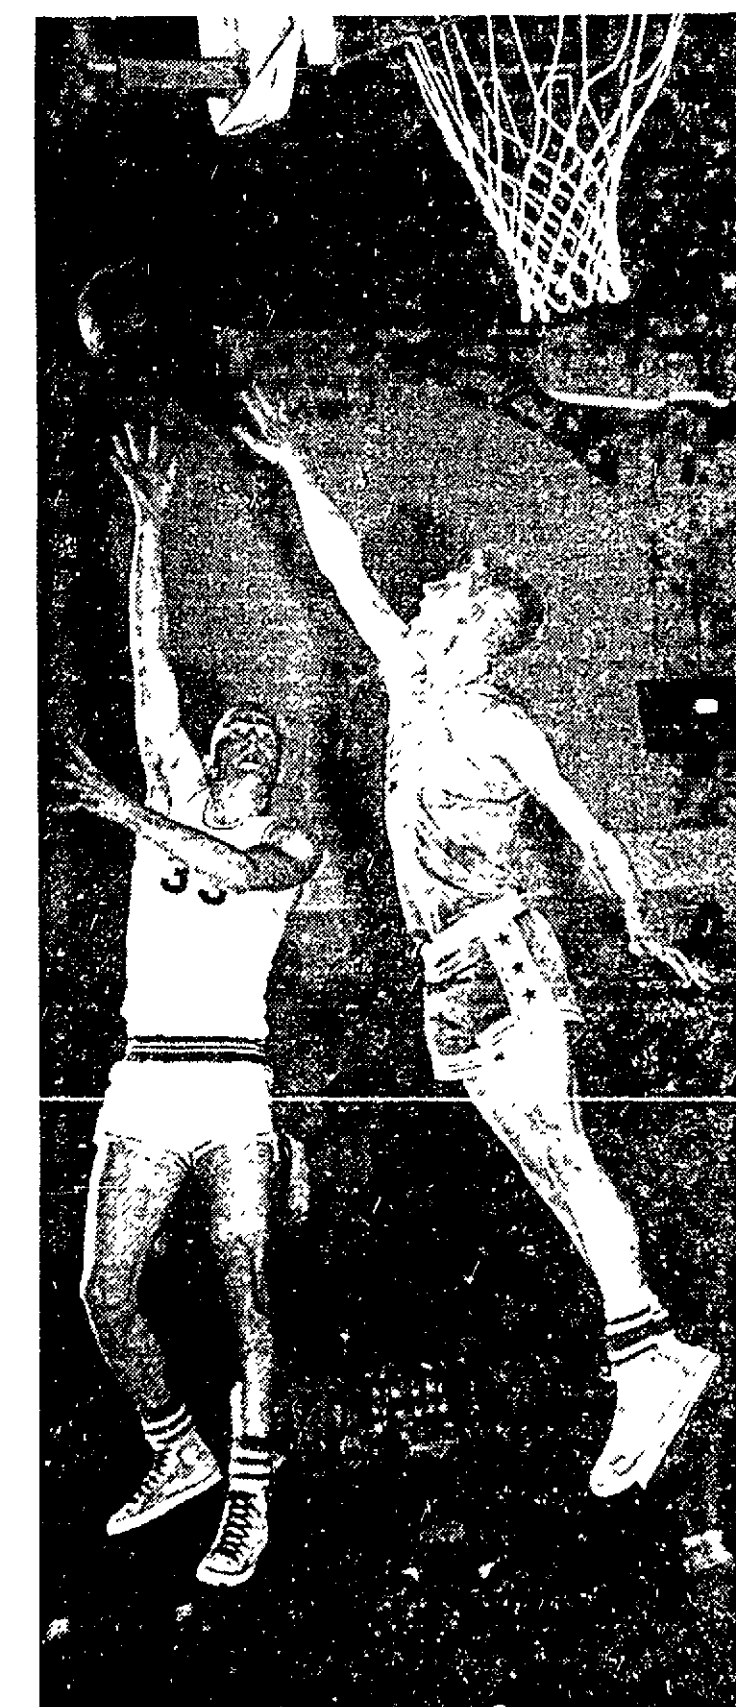

Kimberly stormed to a 60-42 advantage in the first four minutes of the final frame before Coach Frank began substituting freely. The Indians managed to close the gap slightly against Papermaker reserves but were unable to overcome the early lead.

Trailing Jansen for point honors for the winners was Rooyakkers with 20 points while Hearden scored 14, eight of them on free throws. Krenger, Guy Booth and Hoppe all scored 11 points in the well divided Shawano attack.

Hoppe was outstanding on rebounds for both teams although he was unable to work in under the basket for scoring opportunities. Most of the losers' points came on shots from well out. Hearden, driving down the middle, fed Jansen and Rooyakkers directly under the Kimberly basket.

turned in their scrapping-est exhibition.

The outcome of the tension-ridden game hung in the balance until the final two minutes. In fact, the Terrors didn't take a permanent lead until LaViolette draped through a free throw to make it 39-38 with 4:46 remaining.

2 Notable Spurts

The Terrors produced two life-saving spurts—one a 6-point run that took the initiative away from Central when the Redmen threatened to tear the game open early in the second half. The other notable spurt consisted of nine straight points in the fourth quarter that transformed a 36-38 deficit into a cushiony 45-38 lead.

AHS led, 16-15, after a slow, mistake-ridden first half in which neither team looked the part of a champion and both were tightly-strung.

The pace picked up immediately in the third quarter, with the Redmen firing in three quick shots—Howie Schneider's rebound, John Prinsen's lay-up and Schneider's drive. LaViolette stilled the charge momentarily with a 15-footer. But Prinsen scored again and Schneider hit a free throw for a 24-18 lead—Central's biggest of the game. The Terrors unleashed a minute's worth of court fury that tied the score. Abel dunked a reverse lay-up, Treiber and LaViolette both connected after zone-press steals.

Deficit Cuts

Central again assumed command for the remaining 3½ minutes of the third quarter although Abel's pair of free throws reduced the AHS deficit to one (33-32) at period's end.

AHS still found it impossible to gain the upper hand in the first three minutes of the final period, the hosts enjoying a 2-point advantage (38-36).

With 5:02 left, the Terrors suddenly came alive and ground Central's hopes for an undisputed title beneath their flying feet.

Taking a feed from LaViolette, Abel tied the count at 38. LaViolette made one free throw and Abel hit a pair. Central then pressed full court, but LaViolette shattered the defense with a brilliant solo drive.

Cavert also found an opening and thundered in for a 2-pointer that put AHS 7 to the good, 45-38.

Schneider's two free throws were matched by Abel's artistic tip-in that made it 47-40. The Terrors controlled the ball for most of the final two minutes.

Scoreless From Field

The Terrors' class told in the pay-off stanza when they corded seven of 10 shots while holding Central scoreless from the field in seven attempts.

While tight defensive play and apparent jittery lowered most individual shooting averages, Abel dropped in nine of 19 floor attempts (despite considerable double-teaming by Central) and seven of 10 free throws.

The only other double-figure scorer was LaViolette, with 12. LaViolette saved some of his best clutch play for the stretch run.

Abel's and LaViolette's scoring proved indispensable since the other three starters managed an aggregate of only five points—Schultz and Vander-Hoyden two each and Nussbaum one.

LaViolette hit five of 13 shots. Theiber sank his only two as AHS had a team rate of .357.

Central starters "Bud" Wright and Dan Davies were held without field goals. Dangerous Tom Posewitz was kept outside so well that he sank only one of nine shots and finished with five points. The win was AHS' fourth straight on the road and brought its second-round record to 6-1. The Terrors returned to the top of the FRVC for the first time since Dec. 18.

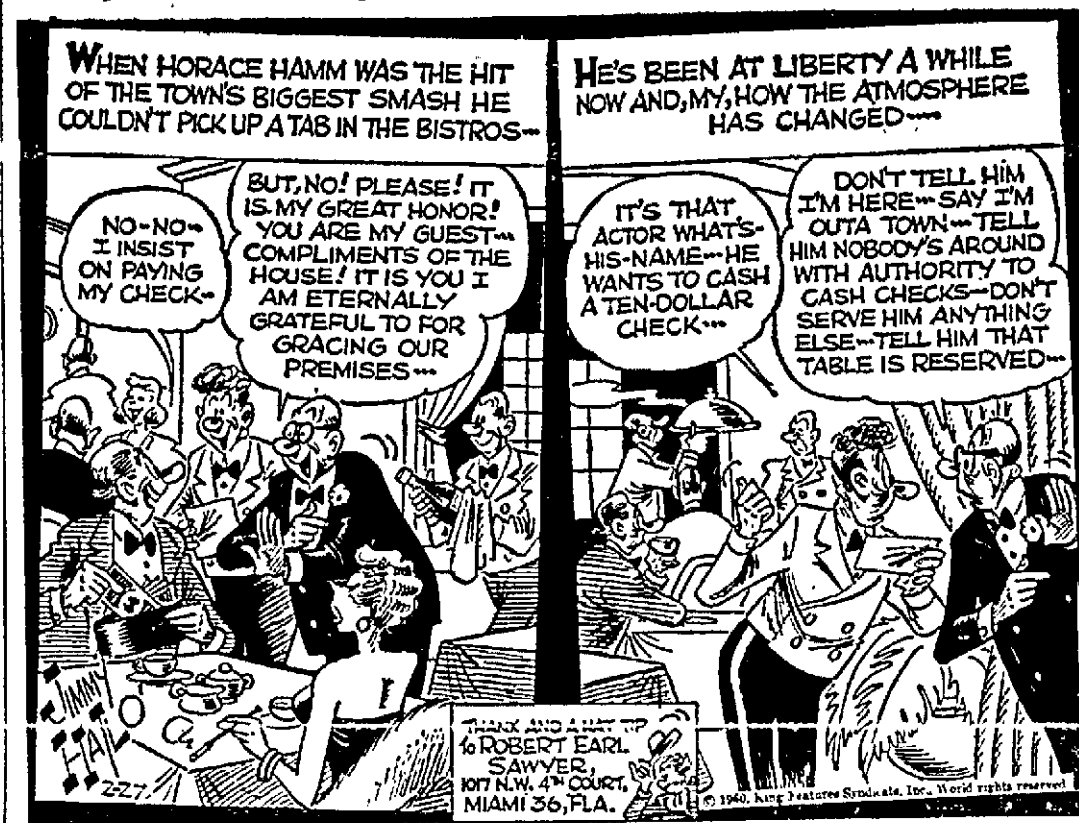

The uphill fight brought Emanuel his second coaching title in his 7-year AHS reign.

It also was Wendt, who made the last field goal of the game, another long one, on only his second attempt giving him a perfect 2 for 2 for the night.

Kaukauna exploded for the first six points of second half to go ahead 27-22. Later, the Orange and Black led 29-23. Menasha came back to gain a 33-41 deadlock and with 10 seconds left LeRoy Weyenberg connected to give the Ghosts a 35-33 third quarter advantage.

Mayor Zachowski opened the last stanza with a free throw. Here the Jays began their drive which carried on to victory. Dave Ristau hit a basket and free throw, Jay Drzewiecki connected on a jump shot and Bill Ritchie stole the ball and dribbled over half the length of the floor to score giving Menasha a 40-36 lead.

6 Free Throws

With five minutes left, the Ghosts' Ken Kavanaugh made a free throw but in the next minute and 23 seconds, the hosts hit on six straight free throws, four by Jim Stenson and two by Ristau, for a 46-37 lead.

The Ghosts splurged for five straight on two fielders by Weyenberg and a free throw by Bill Borchardt, cutting the score to 46-42 with 2:13 remaining.

The Jays held tight and Drzewiecki, dribbling around, spotted an opening and scored easily for 48-42. Dith 1:45 left, Ristau, a dashman on the track squad, stole the ball and outraced everyone to tally for 50-42. Ritchie and Bill Gerhard followed with single free throws and a 52-42 count. With 30 seconds to play another charity throw by Ristau made it 53-42. Baskets by Kavanaugh and Wendt closed the scoring.

Ristau Scores 15

Ristau led Menasha's balanced attack with 15 points. Bill Prange and Drzewiecki each had 10. Weyenberg, who closed a tremendous 3-year conference career, topped the Ghosts with 14, his second lowest league total of the season. He fouled out with 47 seconds remaining.

Borchardt was next with eight points. Jim Steger left on fouls with 30 seconds left and the Jays lost Jim Stenson with 2:42 left. He had three fouls, with just 2:30 gone in the first quarter.

Menasha tallied only 13 of 24 from the free throw line but canned 10 of 15 in the final period. Kaukauna made good on 12 of 23. From the floor, unofficially, the Jays connected on 21 of 46 for about 45 per cent. Kaukauna was only 29 per cent on 16 of 55.

Big, Colorful Crowd Cheers Terrors to Win

ily station wagon, the wrong directions to Sheboygan. Then, on the way to the game, Mrs. E. had a flat tire.

This latter information was announced to the coach by JV guard Mike Lee in the locker room and got quite a rise out of the players.

Manty center "Bud" Wright (6-5) who had fouled out in the third quarter came into the Terror dressing room and congratulated each of the winners.

Though the Redmen still owned a share of the title, 6-6 Central center John Prinsen took the loss especially hard. He sat on a bench in the locker room sobbing, uncontrollably, after the game until veteran Central Coach Carl "Cully" Huebner walked over to calm him down. Of such desire are champions made.

Huebner and Emanuel, both lauded the play of transfer student Prinsen. Huebner wasn't very happy. "We threw this one away," he remarked. "That press shouldn't have bothered us like it did."

The devices dreamed up by students to express their backing are getting more imaginative every year.

The Sheboygan student body plopped "Big Red", a huge figure of an Indian cager probably close to 20 feet high, in the middle of the floor as the teams were warming up and a "speech" by "Big Red" was read.

Most of the AHS fans were wearing the small orange "Beat Central" lapel cards, which long-time Terror fan "Fap" Waltman had gotten printed earlier in the week. Many of them were carrying large "Beat Central" placards.

Central backers got hold of a number of the placards and tore them in half, lengthwise, making separate "Beat" and "Central" cards out of them.

Several groups of Terror students carried long signs around the gym during the period before the game.

One of them, borne by a group which included all-conference grizzer Jim Manier, read "Move up to Quality, Move up to First."

Referee Rudy Prucha of Two Rivers caught an elbow in the head with 2:15 to go in the first quarter and said later that he was knocked unconscious. The game was held up for about five minutes while he was taken out to the armory vestibule to be revived.

Central frosh cage coach Jim Diamond, who officiated both AHS-West games, was in the crowd in case a substitute referee had to be recruited. Prucha and his regular partner, Orv Perry, did their usual competent job. They had worked the Terror-Oshkosh game last week.

When Huebner had the slow-moving Prinsen in the lineup Emanuel was using his "3-guard" offense and had his boys running. Then, Huebner would get somebody more agile into his lineup. "It's just like a game of checkers," Emanuel remarked after the game.

Conkey's defeated Merholtz, 67-50, Thursday night for the championship in the Appleton Recreation department's Major AA Basketball league. The losers had formerly been tied for the lead.

Jeff Knox, deadly on a jump shot from 20 feet, scored 27 points for Conkey's. Motz Drew coined 20 points and turned in a strong board game. "Chuck" Sadler topped the losers with 14.

Conkey's hit the first ten points and never trailed. Smits downed Schreiter's, 72-55, to finish in a third place tie with the losers and Sherry Motors. Smits outscored the Schreiter's, 30-13, in a big last quarter. Jim Stofiel wired a sensational 20-for-22 from the foul line and finished with 24 points for the victors.

John Rellly tallied 20 for Schreiter's.
"Duke" Nymoen scored 32 points as his Sherry Motors '55' downed Hoffman Construction, 69-60. Marv Hietpas, with 16, led Hoffman.

Another Influence
But there was another influence. His brother Hayes took up skating first, when the family was living in Akron, Ohio.

Years later, in 1956, both Hayes and David competed in the winter Olympics at Cortina, Italy. David rooted harder for his brother than for himself. Hayes took first place and David finished third.

"When Hayes won," said David, "that was the biggest thrill of my life. Even bigger than when I won here. My brother is the greatest skater I ever saw."

David, 34-time world champion from Colorado Springs, Colo., found time to leave the Western Reserve Medical school in Cleveland to come here, but such sacrifices of time are becoming more costly.

St. John failed to get organized until the outcome of the contest was already decided. Harland Hietpas scored 13 points to lead the Chuters, and reserve Dave Kons came through with 12.

The Dutchmen hit on 21 of 64 shots from the field for about 32 per cent. From the free throw line they had a poor 12 for 31. St. Mary had 22 of 37 free throw tries.

Officials whistled a total of 46 fouls that slowed the action of the game considerably. Thirty of the violations came in the last half.

Springs had little trouble piling up an early lead and coasted to the win over St. Gregory with 11 players figuring in the scoring.

The first period score was 18-5 and at the half it was 35-13.

Bill O'Neill was high for Springs with 15 points and Vic Schnell and Mike Weber each scored 10 for the losers.

46 Jumpers Vie Sunday for Olympic Title

Gene Kotlarek Rated Among Top Contenders

Squaw Valley, Calif. ——Olympic athletes fly through the air Sunday in the windup spectacular of the 1960 Winter Games. The event is the 80-meter-262.46-foot - special jumping competition.

A crowd of thousands surrounding the huge hill plus a television audience will watch 46 skilled men fly off the jump at speeds up to 55 miles an hour, then land perhaps up to 94 meters — 308.39 feet below.

This year at least 10 men could take top honors.

Helmut Recknagel of East Germany already has soared 94 meters in practice. Torbjorn Yggeseeth, Norwegian exchange student at the University of Washington; Gene Kotlarek, 19-year-old American hope from Duluth, Minn.; Finland's Juhani Karkinen and his brother, Kalevi; and Otto Leodolter of Austria, all have surpassed the 90-meter mark.

The men make two leaps and are judged on form as well as distance.

Other Americans besides Kotlarek are Jon J. St. Andre, Ishpeming, Mich.; Ansten Samuelstuen, Boulder, Colo.; and Bob Wedin, Iron Mountain, Mich.

Lamprey Problem Nearing Solution

Scientists Believe They are on Way to Eliminating Population Of Trout Predators in Great Lakes

Ottawa—Canadian and U. S. scientist feel confident they are winning their battle against the sea lamprey that has been killing off the trout in Lake Superior.

For the last four years the scientists have been teaming up in a crash program to exterminate Lake Superior's lamprey colony and preserve the trout's last refuge in the five Great Lakes.

Using underwater electric shocks and a powerful spawning ground poison, they have killed millions of the ugly bloodsuckers and now appear to have the upper hand. Ontario, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are cooperating in the restocking of the lake with hatchery-reared trout yearlings, about 700,000 of them last year.

Other Lakes
The scientists of the great lakes fisheries commission plan this year to use their techniques in Lake Huron and Michigan, where huge trout colonies were wiped out several years ago. They will also try them out in Georgian bay, where the lampreys have virtually finished the trout population.

The lamprey, a primitive, eel-like fish, has been in the St. Lawrence river and Lake Ontario for centuries. Measuring 1 to 2 feet, it kills by fastening itself to a fish by the pointed teeth lining its circular mouth.

The opening of the Welland canal in 1829 enabled the fast-swimming killers to bypass Niagara Falls. Because they prefer cold water, it took them 100 years to migrate across warm, shallow Lake Erie.

Wiped Out
They were first spotted in Lake Huron in 1932. Within 12 years they had reduced the lake's annual trout catch from six million pounds to virtually nothing. They moved into Lake Michigan and by 1953 had wiped out a commercial trout fishery which had yielded 5½ million pounds a year. They have cut Lake Superior's trout catch from 4,700,000 pounds in 1950 to 1,500,000 last year.

To kill the adult lampreys, 110-volt electrodes are suspended in the water. They generate enough power to have killed a moose that strayed into the water near a bay.

The commission is dealing with the young lampreys with a powerful chemical concentrate that kills them off in their stream-bed burrows without hurting other fish.

Pigeons Persistent

Greenfield, Ind. — The Hancock county commissioners were only temporarily joyful when they learned newly installed screens kept pesky pigeons out of the courthouse tower. The birds simply moved across the street to the county jail.

4,988 Arrests Made in '59 by Game Wardens

43 Per Cent of Violators Were 16 to 27 Years Old

Madison — A total of 4,988 arrests for fish and game law violations was made in 1959, the Wisconsin conservation department reported today.

Of these, 1,203 involved non-residents.

A breakdown by age groups shows that nearly 43 per cent of the violators were 16 to 27 years old. Slightly more than 22 per cent were in the 28 to 37 year bracket, about 16 per cent 38 to 47 years old, and 10 per cent 48 to 57.

Conservation wardens arrested 2,556 hunters and 1,920 fishermen.

More persons were hauled into court for fishing without a license than for any other single cause. The total for this violation was 879, with non-residents accounting for 479, and residents for 400.

Fishing with more than two lines resulted in 275 arrests; possession of a spear, 85; fishing during the closed season, 83; non-residents using resident licenses, 73; and fishing by means other than angling or trolling, 72.

Used Fraud
One resident and 35 non-residents used fraud to obtain a fishing license.

More hunters got into trouble for carrying a loaded gun in a vehicle than for any other cause. Their number totaled 551. Another 291 persons were caught carrying an unlicensed gun in a car. Two hundred thirty were arrested for hunting before or after hours, and 216 for possession of an untagged deer or bear.

Only 28 trappers and 12 commercial fishermen were arrested.

In the miscellaneous category, violations in state parks numbered 174, with 112 of these attributed to non-residents. Some 57 arrests were made for burning without a permit, and transporting Christmas trees without a license accounted for 51.

Question: Are all boats including row boats required to be equipped with life preservers?
Answer: Yes. It is unlawful to operate a boat unless it is equipped with at least one life preserver, life belt, ring buoy, buoyant cushion or other device of the sort prescribed by U. S. Coast Guard regulations, for each person on board.

Question: Are all boats required to have fire extinguishers?

Answer: No. Fire extinguishers are not required on outboards of open construction. All other motorboats are required to have fire extinguishers capable of properly and efficiently extinguishing burning gasoline.

Question: What are the speed restrictions for motorboats?
Answer: It is unlawful to operate a motorboat at a speed that is greater than reasonable and prudent under the existing conditions. The speed shall be so controlled as to avoid colliding with any object, person or conveyance lawfully in or on the water.

Question: What are the specifications for the size and display of the boat identification number?
Answer: Upon being issued a certificate of number, the owner of a motorboat shall paint on or attach to each side of the bow thereof the identification number in contrasting color and in 3" block letters and numbers in such a manner that it may be clearly visible and shall maintain such number in legible condition at all times.

Saliboats
In the case of saliboats the issued number of certification shall be affixed to the visible portion of the stern which rides above the water line.

The number originally issued by the State remains with the boat while under the licensing provisions of the State of Wisconsin.

It is unlawful for any other number to be painted, attached or otherwise displayed on

Hint at Change In Stocking of Hatchery Trout

Major Streams of State May be Cut Back From Supply

A change in the geographical distribution of the trout hatched in state hatcheries for stream stocking purposes may be in the making.

Dr. E. W. Schneberger, chief of the state fisheries service, provided a hint of the plan when he filed his annual report to the state conservation commission.

There should be more emphasis upon planting of the hatchery-produced fish where natural fish reproduction is poorest, he said, which would mean less stocking in the streams of northeastern Wisconsin and probably more in the southwestern counties of the state and in some of the trout lakes that have been planted with increasing success lately.

Major Streams
The most generous stocking has traditionally been in the major streams of the north-east, now getting about a third of the yearly hatchery output.

(Several years ago the state proposed a similar change in planting quotas, with fierce resistance from the sportsmen's groups of the northeastern counties. The plan was dropped as a result of the protests.)

Schneberger also told the commission that research investigations have shown that "a very high percentage of the spring stocked legal trout are entering the creel. We find also that streams with good water sources, but with low natural reproduction, will successfully take fall-stocked brown trout and carry a high percentage through the winter. This indicates some changes in management." He said such changes would be presented later.

Lake Trout
Stocking of lake trout has been successful, the officer said, and about half of all the commercial trout now taken from Lake Superior consists of stocked fish. But he said a successful trout rehabilitation product for outlying waters will require a new hatchery exclusively dedicated to lake trout, which should be on Lake Superior to take advantage of a natural water supply.

Public Meeting March 12 To Cover Wolf Improvement

Gene Garrow, president of the Wolf River Improvement association, will be guest speaker at the March 12 meeting of the Outagamie County Conservation club.

Jim H. Krantzsch, club secretary, said the meeting will start at 8 p.m. It will be held at the county courthouse and will be open to the public.

Krantzsch said that any sportsman who has questions about plans for the

Authorize Dam On Weso Creek

Oconto County Trout Stream in Breed Township

Madison — A state-operated dam for the improvement of game conditions in the vicinity of Weso creek in the town of Breed, Oconto county has been authorized by the Wisconsin public service commission.

The regulatory agency approved the proposal of the state conservation department for the construction and operation of the impoundment on county-owned lands. County officials backed the application for the structure about two miles from the village of Breed.

Weso creek is navigable, and there is no other dam on it, the commission order found. It contains trout. The purpose of the dam is to manipulate a flowage to improve the value of the area for migratory aquatic wildlife, it was said.

There will be a six foot head at normal flow. The commission said the structure won't materially obstruct navigation or violate other public rights.

"Why," the woman asked, "do you like to kill things?" It deserves an answer.

Well, actually, I don't experience great joy at killing any kind of a bird or animal and I say this realizing that it must sound ridiculous coming from a person who devotes a major part of a given year in pursuit of game.

There have been times, in fact, particularly in the case of deer, when I have been reluctant to squeeze off a shot for I knew that when I did a wild and beautiful creature would die. I am sure there are other hunters who have experienced the same feeling at one time or another.

For my part, at least, the greatest thrill in hunting comes from putting myself in a position where it's possible to make a kill. It may be strictly luck or it may be that, for once, I've done everything right but, in any event, my target is out front or overhead in good range and the major part of the hunt is over. There remains, then, only to squeeze the trigger.

Let no one reading these words gain the mistaken impression, however, that I am against killing. I have hunted and fished for more years than I care to remember and I'll continue just as long as my time here permits. I learned long ago that whenever a man picks up a gun and heads into the woods his primary goal should be to kill whatever it is he's hunting. All of his effort — his every thought and movement — should be directed to that end. There can be no other reason to take a gun. If a man's attention can't be so directed then he shouldn't be in the woods with a weapon.

What is distasteful to me, then, and this is my main argument, is killing strictly for the sake of killing. No man should go hunting deer, for instance, just to see how many animals he can kill. Under the law he's allowed one deer. He should direct his efforts to taking that one animal in the best way he knows how. If he can put himself into a position where he can make a quick, clean, sure kill, then he can count his hunt as a successful one.

I like the woods and I like the animals which live there. I like to see them get a square shake. I get slightly sick to my stomach when I see otherwise normal human beings turn those woods into a blood-spattered slaughter house.

I've killed a few birds and animals in my time and I hope I'm lucky enough to kill a few more. But I want to do it the right way.

That's my answer in the best way I know how to give it. And I rest my case.

Question: Are mufflers required on motorboats?
Answer: Yes. It is unlawful to operate or give permission to operate a boat propelled by an internal combustion engine unless equipped with a muffler to prevent excessive and unusual noise at all times while engine is in operation.

Use of Artificial Snow Machines in State Developing

Green Bay Couple Put Process to Good Use in Western Wisconsin

BY JOHN TORINUS
Post-Crescent News Service

The use of artificial snow machines for ski areas has developed rapidly in the eastern part of the country in the last few years. This season a Green Bay couple is finding out the increased potential such equipment can mean to a ski center.

Ted Motschman and his bride, the former Susan Kohl, opened a new ski area in the Mississippi bluffs just out of La Crosse this year. And until last week the La Crosse area had practically no snow all winter, even less than the Green Bay area has had.

But the new Mt. LaCrosse area has been operating every weekend and some week nights since their artificial snow equipment was put into operation in mid-January. If it hadn't been for that Ted says they wouldn't be skiing yet.

Good Base

With the equipment Ted has been able to maintain a 4 to 6 inch base on an area about 400 feet wide and 1,000 feet long. This is the lower open slope in the Mt. LaCrosse layout, with a vertical drop of about 250 feet.

Last fall Ted carved out some beautiful trails from the top of the bluff but these upper trails haven't been used yet for the lack of snow.

Popularity of the La Crosse ski area has been building each weekend. Last weekend was their best, with about 300 skiers present. This is not a startling figure, but the fact that pleases Ted is that trade has been growing by the week, and some of it is coming from areas rather new to the ski business like Iowa.

Artificial Snow
Artificial snow is produced by shooting water and compressed air through a mixer nozzle under proper temperature and humidity conditions. Ted finds he can produce snow at 30 degrees with humidity of 60 per cent. But production is much more efficient at lower temperatures and with less humidity.

In Ted's layout, the pipes, carrying the water and the compressed air go up the two line to the top of the open slope, cross a ridge line and come back down the hill again. Flexible rubber hoses lead off the pipes to the nozzles, and can cover an area about 400 feet wide at present.

The ski bug is now taking hold in LaCrosse and the immediate environs. Mt. LaCrosse offers instruction on weekends, and a lot of new skiers are being produced in the classes. The LaCrosse city recreation department has started a children's ski school.

Groups from Iowa cities like Waterloo, Dubuque and Cedar Rapids, from Chicago and Rockford, Ill., and from Winona, Rochester and Minneapolis, Minn., have started using the La Crosse area.

Until April
Ted figures that with the artificial snow they will have good skiing into April. Curiously enough, he comments that it has taken people in the area a while to get used to the idea that they can ski at no snow on the ground anywhere around. With the four inches of new snow there last weekend, business picked up immediately.

Ted and Sue have learned a lot about the business of running a ski center this winter. As a result they have many plans for the future. Probably top on the list is extending the artificial snow system to a greater area of their slopes, because they are sold on what the equipment can accomplish.

We are a fast-growing paper manufacturer located in northeastern Wisconsin. Our engineers handle interesting work with a lot of variety and plenty of opportunity to use their own discretion and judgment. Because of our rapid growth, we do not have time to increase our engineering staff by hiring new graduates and training them. We are interested in recent graduates but we also want to find experienced men who can produce quickly. If you are an ambitious engineer in either category and want to get ahead faster and farther than your present job permits, this may be just the opening you are looking for. We need qualified men in the following fields:

- Mechanical Engineers
- Chemical Engineers
- Electrical Engineers
- Draftsmen

In addition to excellent starting salaries, we offer a well-rounded employee benefit program with group life and group hospital and surgical insurance paid for by the company and an outstanding profit-sharing retirement plan.

If you are interested, please write us, giving your complete personal and business history, which will be held in strict confidence.
